MAYOR'S OUSTER SUIT IS NOW FACED WITH DEFEAT

Defense Attorneys in Steubenville Case Declare 173 Illegal Signatures

Steubenville, Oct. 8—Defeat today threatened the ouster suit instigated by 425 petitioners against Mayor John S. H. Patton when the defense attorneys brought forth evidence to prove that 173 persons who signed the removal petition against Patton had either not voted in 1925 when he was elected, or were no qualified to vote.

Taken by surprise by this testimony, Special Prosecutor W. R. Albans asked the court for a few hours time in which to check up the election board records. The court granted him until this afternoon in which to make his investigation.

Albans was retained by the Ministerial Association.

THREE NEGROES TAKEN FROM JAIL AND SHOT

Two Accused of Murder of Sheriff in South Carolina County

Aiken, S. C., Oct. 8—Three negroes, two men and a woman, were taken from the county jail here today and shot to death by a mob of 400 men.

They were accused of the murder of Sheriff Henry H. Howard, who was killed during a liquor raid.

The killing followed a verdict of not guilty returned yesterday against Demon Loman, 21. The other negroes slain were Bertha Loman, 26, wife of Demon Loman, and his brother, Clyde Loman, 18.

While the mob was storming the jail, Jailor W. H. Taylor called Sheriff Charles Robinson, but when the latter arrived, Taylor had been locked in a cell. Robinson also was overpowered and locked up.

The mob hustled the woman and the two men to a patch of woods three miles south of the city where they shot them to death.

Ormiston, the missing radio operator, who is also sought by police as a co-defendant in the case, still was at large today. It was reported that he was seen driving a car in Pasadena yesterday, but so far he has not been apprehended.

CALLS FOR CONVICTION OF HARRY M. DAUGHERTY

Buckner Hurls His Heaviest Ammunition at Former Attorney General

New York, Oct. 8—Hurling his heaviest ammunition against Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner today in his summation to the jury, called for a conviction of Daugherty for conspiracy as well as for Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, also on trial.

"Of course you must convict Miller, who was caught with the bonds, he has no Jesse Smith, a Midland Bank, a brother, Mal Daugherty, to cover him up," declared Buckner.

"But are you going to let Daugherty go free because he had Jesse Smith, his 'bag man' to do the job?

"Defense counsel says there is nothing against Daugherty. Nothing, except we have him caught with the cash down to a red cent."

Buckner went over the testimony, tracing $50,000 of the $391,000 paid the late John T. King by Richard Merton for putting through the claim. These $50,000 in bonds were deposited by Jesse Smith, Daugherty's confidential man. Mal Daugherty said the deposit was to make up a political fund deficit.

GREAT WELCOME AWAITS YANKS AND CARDINALS

Both Teams Will Be in New York Tonight To Decide Series

INTEREST STILL IS HIGH

St. Louis Determined It Is Not Beaten; Alexander To Pitch Next

New York, Oct. 8—A boisterous welcome awaits the return of the Yankees early tonight.

Victorious in two straight battles over the St. Louis Cardinals and bearing a one-game lead in the most hectic world series baseball has ever known, the New York American Leaguers are now speeding homeward by special train. They are due to arrive at Grand Central Terminal at 6 o'clock. And there will be thousands of local fans on hand to greet them with as riotious enthusaism as the old town can muster.

The Cardinals are also due to arrive about the same time, but the train carrying the St. Louis players is routed over the Pennsylvania and at that station, also, there is to be a vast throng of the Mound City rooters on hand to greet their favorites.

Interest in the series has not subsided a bit in New York and the attendance at tomorrow's game at Yankee Stadium is expected to be as large as at the opening game last Saturday, if it does not tie the record-breaking mark of last Sunday.

Hotels here report that the demand for rooms is as heavy as it was a week ago.

SHERWOOD EDDY ATTACKED FOR LABOR SPEECH

Charge Y. M. C. A. Secretary Took Advantage of Them To Deliver Propaganda Talk

WILL REOPEN "Y" CASE

War on Detroit's "Open Shop" Labor System Announced by A. F. of L.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8—The whirlpool that since Tuesday has been raging in the American Federation of Labor convention around the Detroit Y. M. C. A., today had drawn into its vortex Sherwood Eddy, international "Y" secretary for Asia.

Labor officials and delegates today were openly charging that Eddy had taken advantage of the federation to obtain the floor and deliver a propaganda address in behalf of European debt cancellation and recognition of soviet Russia.

When Eddy was extended the courtesy of the platform, at his own request, it was with the belief that he had come in an effort to "square" the Y. M. C. A. after the unfavorable situation in which it had been placed by the action of the Detroit body in cancelling an invitation for President William Green to address a "Y" meeting Sunday afternoon.

Extend Eddy Welcome

This was evidenced by President Green's introduction late yesterday afternoon, when he said:

"We are now to have the opportunity of hearing a real representative of the Young Men's Christian Association, one who is in sympathy with the humane work and principles of the American Federation of Labor. We are glad to extend to him the opportunity to the exercise of free speech here, a privilege denied to organized labor by the Detroit branch of the Y. M. C. A."

This introduction was received with vigorous applause from the delegates, who expected Eddy officially to repudiate on behalf of the international body the Detroit "Y" board's action. Eddy's first words, however, were to disclaim that he was speaking in the capacity of a "Y" official, but as an individual who had been to Europe for the last summer as a member of an unofficial labor fact-finding commission. For nearly an hour he held the floor as he poured forth the European propaganda.

Buzzing Groups

The shock and surprise of federation officials and delegates was plainly evident from the outset of his speech. President Green politely thanked Eddy for his remarks, but his flushed face and the vigorous pounding of his gavel plainly disclosed the displeasure he and the convention felt over thus being

STOLEN BINDLEY TRUCK IS RETURNED TO MARION

Car Used by Cigaret Thieves To Make Getaway Found Near Cincinnati

The Reo truck stolen from the Bindley Grocery Co. on N. State-st. the night of Wednesday, Sept. 29, and used by the burglars to haul away 350,000 cigarets taken from the company's stock, has been brought back to Marion from Reading, O., a suburb of Cincinnati, where it was found Wednesday morning of this week as a result of a search conducted by the State Automobile Association at the request of the Marion Auto Club.

The truck was driven back Thursday by Glenn Price, an employe of the Bindley Co., who was accompanied by G. Farr Lurie, local insurance agent who represents the company with which the machine was insured.

The spare tire and rim of the truck were missing and glass in one of the doors was broken. Otherwise it was in good condition.

The truck was found by automobile association officers on a side road near Reading and was turned over to a Reading constable to await its return to the Bindley Co.

No trace of the burglars or the stolen cigarets has been found, local police state.

MARION COUNTY FARMERS TO SHARE IN CROP LOSSES

Exceptionally Heavy Damage Reported in Oats; Corn Yield Suffers

That farmers of Marion County will share in the heavy losses suffered throughout the state as a result of unfavorable weather holding up harvesting is disclosed in information coming from the office of the Marion County Farm Bureau on Mill-st.

Especially heavy damage to oats is reported and on many farms this crop, now standing in shock, will be a complete loss, according to present indications. Usually, the oats crop is out the way before the middle of September, but continued rains have held up the work in Marion county this year so that it is practically certain that much of the grain still in the field will never be harvested.

Corn Losses

Heavy loss in connection with the corn crop is also forecast, due to the fact that the water-soaked fields prevent cutting. In numerous places throughout the county corn is already beginning to rot.

While it is impossible to place a definite figure on the probable loss to Marion county farmers it will mount up to thousands of dollars, officials conversant with the situation say. Damage done to crops by a hail storm in the western part of the county several weeks ago added greatly to the total loss for the season in this section.

Had weather conditions been favorable, farm production in Marion County would have been among the largest of recent years, Farm Bureau officials say.

HOG CHOLERA EPIDEMIC SPREADING IN COUNTY

No Serum Available To Counteract Ravages of Dreaded Disease, Claim

With hog cholera prevalent in Marion County and no serum available, a rapid spread of the dreaded disease is unavoidable, Dr. J. T. Gruber, city milk and meat inspector, declared today.

Hogs in all parts of the county are stricken but the epidemic is reported most serious in the northern and western portions, Dr. Gruber said.

With present conditions continuing farmers in Marion County face great losses while plants in Ohio that produce serum to fight cholera are working double time to turn out the product, Dr. Gruber asserted.

Hog cholera is raging in all parts of Ohio, but it will be at least 30 days before a sufficient quantity of serum is available to make any material progress in checking the epidemic, officials of the veterinarian division of the State Agricultural Department declared today.

There are serum plants at Fostoria, Reynoldsburg, and Columbus.

Officials said today that the disease was widespread in Ohio and also in several other states in the middle west but that they were unable to give any estimate of the probable loss in this state.

The epidemic, they stated, seems to be the worst in many years in Ohio.

WOMAN AUTHOR CHARGED WITH CHECK PASSING

Claims She's Mrs. Elizabeth Murray, Listed in "Who's Who in America"

ARRESTED AT COLUMBUS

Accused of Issuing Worthless Checks for $75 at Hotel Harding

A woman who says that she is Mrs. Elizabeth Murray, listed in "Who's Who in America" as an author, editor and lecturer, is being brought to Marion from Columbus today to answer to a charge of passing two worthless checks for $75 at Hotel Harding filed at the local police department yesterday by Charles T. Gauvey, manager of the hotel.

It is alleged that Mrs. Murray gave the checks for hotel services on Sept. 16 after five days spent here in an effort to sell Dr. George T. Harding, father of the late president, a life membership in the Woman's History Foundation for $1,000. Her proposal also included, according to her story to Columbus officials, a $3,000 additional contribution to the foundation from Dr. Harding.

Gave Age 46

Mrs. Murray, who gives her age as 46, is also wanted in Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and Tampa, Fla., on charges of passing bogus checks and Columbus detectives who placed her under arrest say that she has confessed to cashing more than $1,000 of the checks. She was arrested at a Columbus hotel Thursday afternoon by detectives in the employ of the protective department of the Ohio Hotel Association following filing of the affidavit here by Mr. Gauvey. Early this morning L. E. Reardon, night sergeant of the local police department, left for Columbus with his wife to bring Mrs. Murray here for arraignment.

Located In Detroit

Following her first visit to Marion in September, Mrs. Murray returned and stopped three days at Hotel Harding. The first check given for hotel service was still in the process of collection and no report of payment having been refused at the Tampa, Fla., bank upon which it was drawn had been received by Mr. Gauvey. Shortly after her second visit, however, the check came back marked "insufficient funds" and the local hotel manager immediately began tracing Mrs. Murray. He located her last week at Hotel Cadillac in Detroit and she sent a message promising to come here and take up the check. When she failed to appear Mr. Gauvey resumed efforts to get in touch with her and received another message from Mansfield again promising settlement. In the meantime Mr. Gauvey received notification from the Ohio Hotel Association that complaints had been received about Mrs. Murray's check cashing activities from other localities and this information led to his decision to file the charges which resulted in her arrest.

Called on Harding

Mr. Gauvey says that before cashing Mrs. Murray's first check he telephoned to Dr. Harding regarding her financial responsibility and was informed that Dr. Harding had known her for about six years and that he believed her to be honest and reliable.

When she returned to Marion for her second visit, Mrs. Murray came in a Pierce-Arrow automobile driven by a liveried chauffeur. She had no car when she came the first time, but on both occasions brought about 10 traveling bags which were supposed to contain manuscripts, books, newspapers and other material relating to her work in the literary field and to the Woman's History Foundation which she was promoting.

During her first visit in Marion, Mrs. Murray made two attempts to communicate with Henry Ford by telephone, but was unsuccessful, Mr. Ford refusing to talk with her. It is believed that her trip to Detroit, which followed her stop here, was for the purpose of seeing Mr. Ford.

Reports from Columbus state that she had gone to that city for the purpose of selling Dr. G. T. Harding, Jr., brother of the late president, a life membership in the Woman's History Foundation. Authorities are now investigating this proposition which was originated by her and which is said to be operated from headquarters in Washington. Columbus detectives state that she has admitted using the History Foundation to provide herself with funds.

Los Angeles Home

When arrested, Mrs. Murray first gave her home as Los Angeles but as the checks given by her are on a Tampa, Fla., bank and Dr. Harding states that he became acquainted with her there, it is believed that the southern city has been her place of residence during recent years.

If the woman under arrest is really

Shaw, Past 70, Believes He Has Passed Apex of His Career; Too Much Money in American Films, He Says

LONDON, Oct. 8—With American and European producers clamoring for his work and offering stupendous sums for anything he writes, George Bernard Shaw, his seventieth birthday behind him, believes that he has passed the apex of his career as an author and dramatist, and he frankly admits it.

Returning from a holiday in Italy where he worked diligently but with little success on his latest project, a book to be entitled, "The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism," Shaw in an exclusive interview with International News Service lamented his inability to push ahead as quickly as he used to.

"Goodness knows when I will finish the book," he said. "I feel now that I have only another five years ahead of me and that already I may be on the downgrade. In Italy, I was not able to write more than one hundred words a day. Honestly, the climate took all the vitality out of me."

Makes Film Debut

Shaw's debut as a film actor took place in Italy where he participated in a brief "film interview," a scheme whereby phonographs are synchronized with the film, so that the performer is made to talk while his picture is being shown.

The description of this stunt turned Shaw's thoughts to the movies in general. With his white hair waving in the breeze from an open window in his Adelphia flat, and his long arms swinging, he demonstrated how he had appeared in the films.

"I behaved just as any actor would," he declared, "but when I saw the finished film, it made me shout with laughter. Every single movement was hopelessly exaggerated. That's the trouble with the American movies today. It's quite certain that the American producers haven't yet realized the enormous difference between acting on the film and acting on the stage—the technique is completely different. The chief complaint I have to make against the American films is that the producers think that as long as it costs money it must be good. The backers of the American films are presumably all businessmen who think of art merely in the terms of money.

Griffith Is Example

Jacoby Says More Business and Less Political Pep Needed

LOCAL REALTOR AND ATTORNEY TALKS IN LIMA

Delivers Closing Address as Retiring President at State Realty Meet

"More business and less political pep in government" was designated as Ohio's most urgent need in the address given by J. W. Jacoby, Marion attorney and realtor, in winding up his year of service as president of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards at the closing session of annual convention of the organization held in the Elks' Home at Lima, today.

This statement was made by Mr. Jacoby in reference to public expenditures and Ohio's taxation system, which was one of the three topics used by him as the basis of his address. The Marion realtor urged that every citizen who fails to get a dollar's worth of service for every dollar of the taxpayers' money be required to do so.

Outstanding Issue

"The one really outstanding issue before the voters in the matter of public expenditures," Mr. Jacoby declared.

The Marion attorney delivered the closing address of the three-day convention of the State Association of Real Estate Boards, which began at Lima, Wednesday, and was attended by approximately 1,000 delegates from organizations throughout the state.

In addition to taxation and public expenditures, the retiring president of the association discussed the real estate license law and educational preparation. Following are excerpts from Mr. Jacoby's address:

Taxation

"I hesitate to speak on the matter of taxation because of a general tendency to dismiss the question with the feeling that we will somehow muddle through and that a certain informed few will accomplish the task. This might be so but for the recognized fact that we can not advance far toward a better and more modern tax system without first amending our fundamental law, the state constitution, and to do this will require a popular vote of not only the well informed, but of those who persistently vote 'No' when in doubt. I am convinced that it is the vote of the uninformed that has been repeatedly causing the defeat of the amendment we have sponsored. To succeed in the future, we must enlist the interest of the voter to an extent sufficient to cause him to study and vote intelligently on the tax question. Your association executive and committees have been laboring diligently to bring this about.

"At the suggestion of Mr. McCrehen, one of the past presidents of our association, and at present chairman of our taxation committee, our association extended an invitation to executives of the Grange, Bankers' Association, Building and Loan Associations, Farm Bureau, Merchants' Association, Ohio Tax Association, Ohio Chamber of Commerce and Ohio Association of Building Owners and Managers to attend a conference on this subject. Out of this meeting is evolving a plan to oppose any re-enactment of the direct state levy on property. We are opposed to this direct state tax, because we believe all direct levies on property should be left to local taxing districts and because we believe that the existing sources of revenue are sufficient to carry on our local city and county governments, build and keep in repair our road systems, maintain our schools on the high standards of today and properly care for the numerous state activities. What we need is more business and less political pep in government.

Plan Investigation

"These groups also plan to make a scientific and thorough investigation of the needs and cost of our state government, and are determined to do all they can to eliminate waste and curtail needless expense in the conduct of state and local government. Our association has pledged its hearty support to this movement to the end that Ohio may become a state of profitable industrial activities, contented homes and prosperous farm communities.

"A tax system that bears unjustly upon the home owner, the farmer and the business man, as our present system does, will eventually undermine our whole government and social structure. It will reduce the number of home owners, increase tenancy on our farms and drive the industries of Ohio into those neighboring states where the tax systems bear more lightly upon those who earn their bread by the sweat of their face.

Scores Overlapping

"Finally, we will never stop the increase of taxes until we eliminate overlapping activities in the townships, municipalities, counties in Ohio, and in the state government itself.

"We must also have assurance from every official, whether township, municipality, county or state, that every dollar paid in taxes will bring a dollar's worth of service and the official who gives this assurance and does not live up to it when elected to office must be decisively defeated for reelection regardless of party affiliation or other influence in his community. The one really outstanding issue before the voters is this matter of public expenditures. In order to reduce taxes, it is not necessary to oppose public improvements and civic betterments. It is, however, necessary for every executive official to have a business-like and constructive program to the end that public affairs will be run with the same efficient effort and ability on the part of officials as are successful private enterprises.

Realty License Law

In discussing Ohio's real estate license law, Mr. Jacoby said that bringing about the enactment of this measure was the outstanding accomplishent of his predecessor, Mr. Deem. Reviewing the history of legislation for the regulation of real estate business, he said that the first license law was passed in California in 1917. After the legislation was upheld in the courts as constitutional, the Ohio legislature adopted the measures now in effect.

"Real estate license laws are the direct result of the pre-eminent importance of real estate transactions in every growing community in our country," Mr. Jacoby said. "Transactions involving our land resources exceed in importance and in amount of capital involved, any other business activity. It concerns vitally our home builders and home owners, our industrial, mercantile, financial and agricultural development, and impedes or promotes our city or state progress in proportion to the measure of honesty and integrity of purpose employed by those regularly in the real estate business. The object of this law is to prevent fraud and misrepresentation in real estate transactions and to elevate the business of those dealing in real estate.

Purpose of Law

"This is accomplished by licensing those who for compensation deal in real estate. In order to obtain his license, the applicant must produce evidence of being 'honest, truthful and of good reputation' and possess a knowledge of the code of ethics adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The Board of Examiners may from time to time set up certain educational requirements. Licenses may be revoked for unscrupulous or dishonest dealings after a fair hearing has been granted.

"Experience in states having similar laws show that this law:

"1. Has made it necessary for operators to exercise extreme care in their dealings with the public.

"2. Made operators more ethical in communities where no real estate organization exists.

"3. Stopped operators from acting for both parties without the consent of all parties.

"4. Obtained extension of time on contracts about to be foreclosed or forfeited.

"5. Stopped sale of lots of unrecorded plots.

"6. Obtained contracts and deeds for persons who were entitled to same, but could not get them.

"7. Obtained adjustments on contracts guaranteeing certain improvements, where said improvements were not put in.

"8. Stopped many questionable deals before they were finally consummated.

"9. Stopped a large amount of court litigation.

"10. Helped establish the public's confidence in the licensed operators.

Requirements

In regard to educational preparation, Mr. Jacoby said, in part:

"The educational program of the national, state and local real estate boards is developing rapidly. Within the last few months, Professor Fisher, one of the outstanding authorities on educational matters pertaining to real estate, has been placed in charge of this subject at the University of Michigan. Quite recently, the Ohio State University has made a beginning in the field of real estate education and has added to its corps of instructors a man whose field of endeavor will be to set up a department of research pertaining to real estate practices and real estate economics, and secure and assemble facts for the study of this subject.

"Fifty years ago it was not necessary for any professional man to obtain special training at any educational institution before entering this profession. Lawyers entered the profession very much as Patrick Henry did, who applied for admission to the bar after studying law for two weeks, and who, when admonished by Thomas Jefferson to study a fortnight longer, said that 'the way to learn law was to practice it.' In fact, all of the practitioners, until comparatively recent years, whether in dentistry, in medicine, in pharmacy, in law or even in the teaching profession and the ministry learned their professions by practicing them. Happily that day has passed and the people of this country are not to be subjected longer to the peril of having professional men in any field learn from the mistakes made in performing services for their clients."

"Boost Ohio" Movement

"Supplementing this educational program, the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards a year ago instituted a movement known as the 'Boost Ohio' movement. A program of addresses was broadcast from the WAIU station, Columbus, and 10,000 pamphlets containing these addresses were distributed throughout Ohio. Considerable newspaper publicity was given to this program by the press. The name was changed to "Know Ohio" and other civic and business organizations were invited to participate in this program. Those organizations joining in this movement are the Ohio Farm Bureau, the Manufacturers' Association, the Ohio Federation of Labor, the Ohio Building and Loan Associations, the Grange, the Ohio Hotels Association, the Ohio Merchants' Association, the American Insurance Union, the Ohio Tax Association, the Ohio Mortgage Association, the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, the Ohio State Teachers' Association, the Ohio Real Estate Association, the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society and representatives of the newspapers and press of Ohio. It is planned to devote the entire week of November 14 to this program. The WAIU radio station at Columbus will broadcast a program each night of "Know Ohio week" with one or more addresses interspersed by a musical program, and the American Insurance Union, will, without expense, publish in pamphlet form informative material about Ohio and its resources. These will be for distribution by the organizations participating in the movement.

"Governor Donahey has consented to issue a proclamation setting aside this week of November 14 as "Know Ohio Week." It is the plan of those sponsoring this movement to enlist in it luncheon clubs, the schools, the churches, all civic and business organizations of Ohio and the newspapers of our state. It is our purpose to bring home to every citizen of Ohio the advantages of his home state and to sell the state to our own people. In this endeavor, I solicit the hearty cooperation of every realtor in Ohio.

"In conclusion, permit me to say that there have been no unpleasant tasks for your officials or executive committee to consider during the past year. Harmony has prevailed among all of your local boards. I thank every one of you for your assistance and bespeak for each of you that success to which I know you are entitled."

Young Mister Douthit Induced to Play Professional Ball by History Professor

(BY KATHARINE BRUSH)

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 8—One of the aces was missing from the St. Louis pack of Cards in the first game against the Yanks yesterday. Young Taylor Douthit, centerfielder, spent the tense innings in the dugout, no doubt roundly cussing the wrenched and battered shoulder that kept him there.

Douthit's injury was sustained in the mad fray of Wednesday, when he and Hafey, the left fielder, both intent on pulling a fly ball in from deep out of the blue, bumped into one another with a bump so violent that you fancied you could almost hear it. Both dropped to the ground. Both lay writhing while the fans held 38,000 assorted breaths and the team mates of the casualties rushed to aid them. Both rose in due time and played the rest of that game and Hafey played in the game yesterday. But Douthit must have been more masked against than masking in the collision, for yesterday morning the condition of his shoulder was such that the use of it for business purposes was out of the question.

Blaming the Prof.

Nobody knows whether or not his presence on the diamond yesterday afternoon would have made any difference in the outcome of the battle. But certainly his absence robbed the encounter of a bit of its accustomed color.

Douthit is one of the most colorful and interesting ball players in the current world series. Young, he's not long out of the University of California from which he graduated in 1923. He's good looking, too, in a clean cut sort of way, so that there is noticeable in the cheers that greet his diamond accomplishments quite a sweet and swelling soprano note. And he is as likeable young man as you would want to meet, a living explosion of the ancient theory that professional ball players are not gentlemen.

And who do you suppose induced Taylor Douthit to become a professional ball player in the first place? None other than the professor of history at California.

This was a shock to me. My experience with history professors has not been what you could call extensive except for the one who flunked me. I can't say I've ever known any but I could have sworn that they had no sporting proclivities whatsoever. I mean, I thought that in all probability baseball history, past, present or future, was one history that left them quite cold. It seems I was wrong. Mr. Douthit not only had me that he was pro and was the main reason for his presence on the team, but he coached the history prof had quite plainly been a baseball bug.

"Here I Am"

"He never got over it," Douthit said. "He just played a few years and then went back to his studies. But he's crazy about baseball to this day. Follows it as closely as if he were Landis or somebody. I was playing on the California team and he used to invite me over to his house in the evening and we'd talk for hours and hours about the game. When I graduated he sent me to Branch Rickey, at that time manager of the Cardinals, who was a personal friend of his. And," concluded young Douthit smiling like a very nice tooth paste advertisement, "here I am."

Douthit has been the property of St. Louis Nationals for three years, but this is his first year of big league playing. Previously the club farmed him out to teams in minor leagues, so that he might learn the few things he wasn't born knowing about the game. This year he began with the Cardinals in the spring and he has been there ever since. Right there. Ask any St. Louisian.

He is the lead off man on the team's batting list. And last Saturday afternoon in New York he started off the first half of the first inning of his last world series with a home run ball that took him around to score the first run of the series. And he has been getting and running of and on ever since.

He lives in Oakland, Calif., and during the winter is the right hand man of his father, who has a flourishing real estate business. He isn't married and doesn't want to be until Little Miss Right comes along. He insists that he has never seen a love. "But, of course," he added hopefully, after he had told me this, "I know some awfully nice girls back home."

BIG SLIDE AT PANAMA

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, Oct. 8—A million and a half cubic yards of earth, the largest slide in months, moved toward the Panama canal at Gaillard cut yesterday. Two hundred thousand cubic yards of it entered and partially blocked the channel. Traffic was not interrupted.

COACH LANDS IN CANAL

Rochester, Oct. 8—A gasoline car on the Rochester branch of the Pennsylvania railroad was derailed yesterday and landed in the bed of the old Genessee Valley canal. Ten or 12 persons were injured.

FIRE HALTS JOY RIDE

New York, Oct. 8—Mrs. Frederick Seuese's method of stopping her husband from joyriding at night was to build a fire under his automobile. She was held in $1,000 bail to answer to a charge of arson.

SESQUI IS CASH FLOP

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—Philadelphia's sesquicentennial exposition is a financial failure. The exposition is to run until Nov. 30 and to date it is estimated has incurred a deficit approaching $2,000,000. The trouble, officials admit, is that less than 5,000,000 persons have come to the show, whereas 25,000,000 were expected.

DIG FOR PIRATE TREASURE

Burlington, N. J., Oct. 8—Believing a legend that Blackbeard the pirate planted a Spaniard and a walnut tree on the hole in which he buried a treasure chest here, Florence H. Seward, 60, and two of his sons have set men to digging at its roots. Neither the colonel nor armed guards will say whether they have as yet encountered the Spaniard or the chest.

DOGS CATCH CONVICTS

Thomaston, Me., Oct. 8—Two Canadian police dogs last night tracked down in a cranberry bog the four convicts who escaped from the state prison here. The swamp land had made it impossible for the convicts to get far from the prison.

EVIDENCE CONVICTS PAIR

Bryan, Oct. 8—While counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Louis Milano was trying to convince Judge Brown a bottle brought to court as evidence did not contain alcohol, the cork in the bottle suddenly popped out and hit the ceiling. "Fifty dollars apiece," said the judge.

"BACH" BUYS BIBS

Chicago, Oct. 8—An assorted collection of 100 rose glass infant bibs were sold in one package which was auctioned off at a sale of "dead" mail here. The package had been knocked down to a $1 a bid and the one who bought it was a bachelor.

Daily Proverb—"Consider well and oft why thou comest into this world and how soon thou must go out of it."

Possibly the worst is yet to come. Peaches Browning threatens to take to the stage.

But think of the awful fate of those entombed miners up in Michigan had those three corncob pipes upon which they existed been a like number of "deadly" cigarets!

"I do not wish to speak unkindly," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "but the more alleged humor I hear the more I lean to the view of the late Al. G. Field that there never were but eleven original jokes."

It's lucky Harry Thaw delayed the writing of his book as long as he did. Had he written it a few years sooner he might never have gotten out.

The way the Chicago papers are talking, it a wonder the Windy City hasn't demanded that it be recompensed by the other cities of the Great lakes for saving them from floods.

"As the days pass," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "my conviction grows that De Russe's lane was no place for a nice, modest girl to go in the night season with a married man and church official."

Manifestly there is nothing selfish about "Peaches" Browning. Although she has left her somewhat elderly husband she has not refused to permit him to pay her bills.

We see that a $275,000 Gutenberg Bible has been sent to New York City looking to its sale. Well, among that city's millions there may be a market for a Bible, of course, but isn't the price named a bit high even for one seeking one for collection purposes?

We never can find it in our heart seriously to blame Mussolini for a lot of the talk he utters. Benito simply has to turn out a certain amount of vocal bunk to hold his job.

A market story told us yesterday that apples in the Great Northwest are pentiful, which reminds us that, of all apples, those of the Great Northwest are easily the finest—to look at.

There's no getting away from the fact that the American who plans an "Optimists'" club over there showed mighty good judgment in going to London while Dean Inge was over here.

Invitations extended by ten Detroit churches and the Y. M. C. A. up there to members of the American Federation of Labor to make addresses have been recalled on the ground that "the aims of the labor federation are not in harmony with ideals of American patriotism." Without going into the merit of the matter, we would be inclined to place the patriotism of the federation high above that of one of the great church organizations which is preaching pacificism and internationalism alike.

That Hatred of America.

Americans returning from trips in Europe, both those in public and private life, American writers and correspondents abroad and American writers here at home who have reliable sources of information in Europe, tell us that we Americans are in Europe the most hated people on the face of the earth.

If this be true, Germany is an exception to the general European rule, or the Germans are more adroit in concealing their hatred. We prefer to believe the former.

We reach this conclusion from the reception recently accorded seventy sailors from the cruiser, Memphis, in Germany. The American tars are said to have taken Berlin by storm and from the time of their arrival were granted all the privileges of distinguished visitors. They went to Berlin by invitation and a schedule for their entertainment had been prepared, but the demands of organizations and individuals for permission to entertain the boys were so many and so strong that the program had to be abandoned. In a word, civilians didn't propose that the Americans should get away without knowing what civil Germany, as well as official, thought of them.

It was the first time since the war that an invitation had been extended to members of any force opposed to the Central powers. They were wined and dined and dined and wined in Berlin and Potsdam, whose interesting sights were shown to them, and a special theatrical pormances was put on for them—a revue at a leading house—which was followed by a ball. From arrival to departure, the American tars were feasted and treated as, so they said, they never had been before.

It is a rather peculiar circumstance that these stories of European hatred of America and Americans have come from those who have been traveling in, have written from or have their source of information in, the lands with which we were associated in the Great war. From Germany come radically different stories, some of them brought back by our own townspeople who have been abroad this year.

If we are hated throughout Europe, Germany and Germans take an odd way of showing their hatred.

Great Queen, but Greater Woman.

Early next week—next Tuesday, we believe—Queen Marie, of Roumania, will go aboard the Leviathan, and in the ordinary course of things will land in New York six days later.

We Americans pride ourselves on our democracy, but it can hardly be refuted that a lot of us are interested in royalty and the doings of royalty, no matter how well-developed our spirit of democracy may be. For this reason, we feel that it will be interesting to many to know the kind of a woman this coming royal visitor really is. The most of the readers of these columns probably have read some, possibly all, of the articles of stereotyped magazine style concerning her given publication during the past month or two, but they told us so much about the queen and so little about the woman that we wish to break away from their line and give something new and different, and we believe this end can best be attained by offering what Lady Nancy Astor had to say of her just before sailing for home on the Acquitania, Wednesday.

"Queen Marie is the most remarkable woman in the world," said Lady Astor, "and one of the least appreciated outside of her own country. You have all read a good deal about her, I suppose, but there is one side of her character which you have not heard about. She has never written about it herself. She has the most remarkable war record of any woman in the world, I believe. She is a woman of great courage, and during the war she went into places filled even with lepers. She has amazing courage.

"I did not quite understand her when I first knew her, for she is a thorough aristocrat, a daughter of the czars, and I am a democrat. Our ideals are somewhat different. But as I came to know her better, I learned to admire her tremendously. She possesses the most magnetic personality; she has wonderful charm.

"She glows like a warm light when she comes into the room. You will be captivated by her. Every one about her loves her. She is a most devastatin' woman," and Lady Astor forgot her "g."

"There is nothing little about her. I never heard her say a mean or spiteful thing about any one."

We remember one day, something like a quarter of a century ago, when we—and pretty much all Marion, for that matter—went out to the station to see Admiral George Dewey. We do not now have, and never did have, any particular longing to see propaganda-made notables, much less to meet them personally, and we wouldn't walk to the corner of the block to see many of the publicity-made notables of the day, but we do like to see those who have achieved greatly in any honorable field of endeavor, not for public acclaim, but because it was all in the day's work, all in their line of duty. We want to know how they look and react to the greetings of the populace. It is pleasing to us to study their faces and any mannerisms they may show. In a word, we like to familiarize ourselves with the real doers, the real thinkers, the real people who by merit put themselves above the commonplace, and we are glad to say that we got a real thrill—a succession of them, in fact—from our five-minute observation of that brave and high-class naval commander, who has gone down in history as "The Hero of Manilla Bay."

And from what Lady Astor has to say of her, and from what we have been told of her by others who know her personally, we believe we could get quite a thrill from seeing this woman known to the world as Queen Marie, of Roumania.

Aimee McPherson is very bitter against that district attorney out in Los Angeles, and maybe, were we in Aimee's place, we would be too.

Chicago is reported to be planning "pedestrian traffic control." We true aristocrats are all out of luck. Instead of permitting us to pick the time and place in which we will take our chances with death, the cities now propose to hold us up and send us to our fates in droves.

From Paris we get an announcement purporting to come from Queen Marie, of Roumania, that she will submit to no interviews and see no reporters while in this country. If she adheres to that, she's going to get a succession of awful shocks when she reads the "interviews" the "newshounds" turn out without seeing her.

The list of jewels stolen from the Newport residence of General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt when printed in very fine type in a New York paper almost filled a column. In fact, the general couldn't have accumulated many more valuables, apparently, had he been a hard-working spreader of joy and sunshine in paragraphs.

Vagrant Verse.

CYMBALS.

Gentle Mother of the shrine,
Merciful and cool,
Water quivers at your feet
In a lily-pool.
Still my blood and let me rest
With you in retreat.

Listen, Mother! Do you hear
Clanging cymbals beat?
Swirled in cherry-colored mist,
Life will seek me out,
Clashing cymbals laughingly,
Calling with a pout.

Mother of the cloistered way,
Pitying and chaste,
Thin, white shadows touch your hands,
Reverent and laced.
Teach me perfect quietude,
Let me meditate.

Yellow grapes and purple plums
How me with their weight,
See, I can not help myself
When the cymbals ring!
Life has learned I'll follow them
Over everything!

Mother of the mysteries,
Comforting and wise,
Dim, eternal depths are meshed
In your tranquil eyes.
Show me soothing silences
Made for souls like mine.
Give me draughts of night, distilled
Into starry wine.

Cymbals clatter! Cymbals crash
Till my pulses burn!
Grant me, Mother, though I go,
That I may return!

WHY NOT HAVE THE LAW EQUIP AUTOMOBILES WITH SCOOPS?

Clean Collar Is Health Asset.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

All too often we hear about a death from carbuncle. Some of the fatal cases have resulted from the use of infected shaving brushes.

It is fortunate that health officials have gone forward with the cooperation of manufacturers of shaving brushes so that the public is reasonably safe against this dreadful menace.

The absence of a properly-fitted and properly laundered collar may have much to do with the development of boils. Nobody should wear a tight, rough, soiled collar. The intimate things of dress, that is all the things which touch the skin, must be what doctors call surgically clean. This means that every such article must have been boiled and rendered sanitary in the laundering process. If it happens that the collar, for instance, is tight and rought at the same time that it is soiled, its chafing may break the skin and at the same time there may be rubbed into the broken surface a germ which may produce disease.

By rubbing the skin with the germs which cause boils a crop may be produced. If the laundry contains the germs of boils, a rough collar may result in an attack of this sort.

From what I have told you about boils and carbuncles it is apparent that they do not come unless the causative germ is carried into the skin. When you learn to treat the skin as carefully as the veneer of a beautiful piano is treated, you will have less trouble and fewer eruptions.

There are certain underlying physical conditions which must be considered if a series of boils is present. Kidney troubles and diabetes have boils as a symptom.

In the beginning a boil indicates its onset by a red, painful spot somewhat raised above the surrounding skin. The swelling increases. The color turns darker. The whole area feels hard to the touch. Later the center of the swollen spot gets softer and turns yellow. Pretty soon pus escapes, and in a few days the center comes out in the form of a "core."

Carbuncle is a more serious condition. Instead of one opening there will be several. The swelling is much greater. The pus is deeper-seated. The victim is fortunate indeed if he does not have blood poisoning and become exceedingly ill by reason of the pus absorption.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

The troubles that France is having are the troubles of a state of mind. France is spending millions on the maintenance of the largest military force in the world. Naturally she is short of money to pay her debts because of the money going into this military establishment. And France maintains her great army because of a state of mind. And the state of mind is a state of fear.

The trouble with most European governments lies in the fact that there are too many political parties, too many "blocs," too many groups pulling against each other. There is insufficient concentration on the idea that it is the chief business of the citizenry to pull together for the good of the nation. True progress comes when there is a sinking of individual liberty for the best interests of the whole.

The biggest names for posterity to admire are not always made in the biggest positions. There are a half dozen presidents or more whom the American people have forgotten. We are not likely to forget Daniel Webster, who was secretary of state under three presidents, but never president himself. Children for generations to come will thrill to the stories of Daniel Boone, the explorer of Kentucky. Tomorrow and a hundred years from now more people will remember and know about Thomas Edison than will remember and know about Millard Fillmore or Buchannan or Franklin Pierce, who were presidents of the United States.

In the end it is not the job but the contribution to your time that counts.

The American wife and mother is called upon for the display of a high order of genius. Her problem is to make home an attractive place for children—all the way up to manhood and womanhood—and yet to preserve in that home the general appearance of order. Children and young people are not usually orderly. Left to themselves they may turn rooms into riot. It is the difficult job of parents to emphasize order without emphasizing it so hard that home will be unpleasant. That sort of thing takes genius.

Young people are often advised to form the habit of paying cash for everything. They are told never to borrow money or never to go in debt. This may sometimes prove mistaken advice. Borrowing money may be the very thing you should do. But the one basic thing, more important than all else to remember, is this: When your debts are due, pay them. Above all, success in business means keeping your credit unimpaired.

Who's Who and Why.

DUC DE GUISE.

The present French pretender, the Duc de Guise, is leading a quiet life. He is interested in farming and his estates near Brussels, in his art treasures and his family archives. But when there are guests at this royal home all the formalities that hedge around a king are observed. That he expects one day to be king, or perhaps thinks of himself in that role, is proved by the statement issued to all royalists at the recent death of the Duke of Orleans:

"As chief of the house of France, since the death of his highness the Duke of Orleans, I claim all rights, assume all responsibility and accept all duties thereof."

When the Princess Isabelle, who is the present Duchess de Guise, married her young cousin back in 1899, her wedding was attended by royalty. At that time the late Duke of Orleans, her brother, was living at York House, Twickenham, England, and there was present the Princess of Wales and members of the English court. When members of the royal house of France travel abroad they have been welcomed as equals by royalty. Several have married into reigning houses of Europe.

For some reason, the Duc de Guise was not kept out of the French army, and he distinguished himself on the field of battle, receiving the Croix de Guerre. Last spring a bill was introduced into the chamber of deputies relieving him of the banishment imposed upon him as head of the house of Bourban, but while it had many supporters it was not passed. So the duke continues to spend his time in Brussels, while the duchess is much in Paris preparing to be queen.

One reform needed in the theater is the custom of selling upper boxes. The tariff is usually the same as that for a good seat and in almost every instance the patron finds he can only see a tiny section of the stage by unhinging his neck. Newer theaters are abolishing the stage box and the older ones should board them up. It is a hold-up unworthy of the industry.

An hotel reports a $20,000 loss in one year by souvenir hunters—in most cases table silver is purloined and the thievery is as a rule by those who come to dine and are not stopping at the hotel. One hotel tried to check the loss by having every piece of silver stamped "Stolen from Blank's Hotel," but this was regarded as an affront by honest patrons and merely acted as a spur to the mischievous intention of the souvenir hunter. Even when silver is missed before the patron's departure any accusation becomes an extremely dangerous procedure for in case of mistake the liability of a damage suit is almost certain.

Manhattan it appears has no time for the practical joker in this hurry up age. Many men in the past gained fame as official jesters. The most famous perhaps was Brian G. Hughes who won a blue ribbon at a Madison Square garden horse show with his entry "Puldekar Orphan." The animal was formerly attached to cross-town street cars. Hughes fattened, curried and slicked the horse up in such a manner that all the judges were fooled. "Puldekar Orphan" translated meant "Pulled a car often"—which it had done.—Copyright, 1926.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

When I was in Ireland I kept looking around all the time for Pat and Mike, the two Irishmen with the pipes in their mouths and the black thorn clubs to bust each other on the bean with. Well, you know Pat and Mike. They've been in the funny papers ever since I can remember, and I used to see 'em in vaudeville when I was a youngster. I guess they must have been over in America, working in burlesque or something, because I didn't see 'em, although I looked all over Ireland for 'em. I couldn't even find any of their relations. I just met folks, you know, like you meet other places, and mighty nice folks, too. Nobody hit me with a shillelah or said "begorra" or "bedad" to me, and I felt kinda funny about it at first, like as if you went to see Niagara falls and there wasn't any water in it, or you went to congress and didn't hear anybody talking about pork.

But I heard a story about Pat. He had a dream, and was telling about it. Seems he didn't know that smart-alecks might be taking down what he said and maybe accusing him of being in love with his greatgrandfather on account of what he dreamed, and so he went right ahead and told how he had dreamed he was visiting Saint Patrick himself in heaven. And the saint, knowing Pat well, said:

"Will you have your whisky hot or cold, Pat?"

And Pat said: "Hot if it's all the same to your riverence."

"And that's where I made me big mistake," says Pat, telling his dream to his buddies. "I was a fool for it. Saint Patrick was all right and a good Irishman, and he steps out to the stove in the kitchen to heat up the whisky, and while he's out there I wakes up. If I'd only had sense enough to take it cold."—Copyright, 1926.

Construction Work Starts on New Platform Along Big Four and Erie Third Track

Erection of New Addition Expected To Complete Building Program of Railroads in Vicinity of Union Station This Season

Work began today on the construction of a platform along the third track of the Erie and Big Four Railroads east of the Union Station. The platform is to be about eight feet wide and 75 feet in length. It is being built of thick plank and ties.

The erecting of the new platform is expected to complete the building program of the railroads in the vicinity of the Union Station this season.

Early in the spring, the installation of a new drainage system along the front platform of the Union Station and American Railway Express Co. warehouse began. The project was completed in ample time to take care of the heavy rainfalls experienced during the summer.

In addition, sewers of draining the water from the shed at the Union Station were established.

Platform Raised

In connection with the building of the new drainage system, the platforms at the Union Station was raised slightly. New curbs were also constructed.

A few days ago, the new water line of the Hocking Valley Railroad, extending from the Garden City pik to Bellefontaine-av, a distance of two miles, was installed along the Hocking Valley tracks laid on the west side of the Union Station.

The building program of the railroads in the vicinity of the local station this year has not been equaled for many summers and probably will not be equaled for some time.

Rebalasting Tracks

Pennsylvania workmen are still busy on the "stripping" of tracks near W. Centerst. The old ballast has been removed and the new material will be placed between the ties within a short time.

Bulletin No. 32 of the debit record of workmen of the Hocking Valley Railroad arrived today. Only 16 workmen on this division were given debits while, according to the last report, 40 received debits last month for certain acts committed that were not in accordance with the rules of the railroad.

Bulletin 28 of the credit record shows that only two persons have performed deeds during the last month worthy of placing them on the credit record. Last month four were placed on the record.

To Pay on Time

The Hocking Valley Railroad has issued an announcement pertaining to the promptness in which employes of the road shall receive their pay.

In order that all men may receive their pay on time, the paymaster of the Hocking Valley has asked that their whereabouts be made known by noon the day before payday so that their checks may be sent to that community.

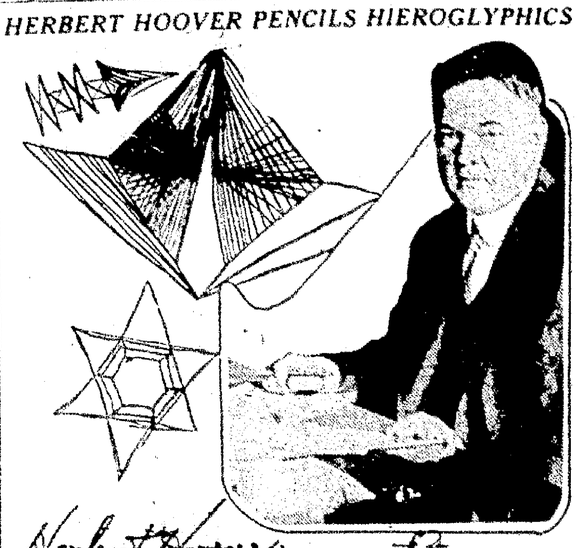
During the last few months, some complaint concerning the receiving of pay has been recorded because the paymaster did not know in which vicinity the employe was located. This held especially true with construction gangs, extra men and the like, who moved about from place to place.

Foremen, trainmasters and other officials have been requested to keep tab on each man under their supervision, in order to notify the paymaster of each person's whereabouts.

R. L. Pearse, traveling freight agent of the Hocking Valley Railroad, was in Marion yesterday on business.

Ed Draudt, traveling car agent, of the Hocking Valley, having offices in Columbus, was a visitor in Marion yesterday.

HERBERT HOOVER PENCILS HIEROGLYPHICS



Secretary Hoover and some of his characteristic "conference scrawlings

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8—Most famous men have strange outlets for their mental processes. And most Americans, particularly, are given to strange scrawlings while to all intents and purposes, they are intensely occupied on important affairs.

Freudian psychoanalists undoubtedly could discover much that is unseemly or awesomely significant in these hieroglyphics. But they see too much.

Of America's eminent scrawlers Herbert Hoover is one of the most interesting. See him sometime when he is in conference with a group of newspaper men, talking with them, answering their questions, in his characteristically direct way. His pencil is almost continually busy with a scratch pad.

A correspondent grown curious about the figures drawn by the Secretary of Commerce, managed to obtain a set of Hoover's scrawlings and found them to be uniformly geometric in style. No curliques, no curly abstractions are Mr. Hoover's. Instead he draws strict free-hand geometric combinations, triangles, stars, cones, parallels and cross-hatching.

It is typical of the Secretary that his abstractions should be formal, with few curves, if any, and usually conventional in design. Seldom are his scrawls alike, but always they retain their essential characteristics.

Look in any telephone booth and you will find the idle whimsies of minds other than the Secretary's. They're illuminating, too.

At a late hour that night the clerk at ...ester's best hotel was surprised ... the arrival of a young widow, motoring alone with her chauffeur— bound, ...e mentioned casually, for her family ...ce in New Hampshire and delayed by engine trouble. The situation ...s more unusual then than it would ...e now, but her quiet manner, impeccable accent, and deep mourning convinced the clerk of her respectability, and he gave them rooms.

About nine o'clock the next morning the touring car of Mrs. Horatio Smith rolled slowly into Fitzwilliam, a village consisting of one tavern, one general store, one butcher shop, one postoffice, one town hall, two churches, and a few houses. High, timbered hills, now aflame with autumn foliage, rose behind it, and off in the distance Monadnock reared his solitary blue peak. Mrs. Smith directed her respectful chauffeur to stop at the tavern, where she descended to make inquiries.

The proprietor told her that there were several available houses in the vicinity, already deserted by their summer occupants, but when it came to obtaining one that very day there were difficulties. They would have to get permission from the owners. Perhaps Mrs. Smith would stay at the tavern for a day or two until arrangements could be made? Mrs. Smith gently demurred. She was in deep trouble and wished to be alone. Her housekeeper would arrive that night and she was extremely anxious to be settled immediately in her own quarters. She was a stranger in the East and could give no references, unfortunately, but she would take a suitable house for a month, paying the rent in advance, with the option of keeping it all winter if she liked it. She had heard of Fitzwilliam from a friend who had once visited in the neighborhood, and thought she would prefer it to the larger towns, because she wished to be very quiet. If she decided to stay an aunt of her husband's would join her later.

Impressed by her charm, her evident prosperity, and her pathetic straits, the the tavern-keeper admitted that he had the keys of certain houses and the matter might be arranged by telephone. In the end, Mrs. Smith found herself in possession of a comfortably furnished domicile belonging to a well-to-do Boston couple named Finlaw, who used it only in summer. It was removed from the center of the village on a lonely road which seemed to lead nowhere, and was without near neighbors. There was a barn where the car could be kept. Linen and silver were not provided, but she said she could pick up enough of these at Keene to serve until her own things arrived. Whereupon convinced that the stranger would be a valuable acquisition to the village, the kind-hearted tavern-keeper turned over the keys and withdrew.

After airing the house a little and putting a few things in order, Roberta and Piggy locked the doors and set off again in the car, ostensibly for Keene. They made wide detour, however, skirting the foot of Monadnock by winding ways through thick forests of small pine and slender, pale-barked, golden-leaved birch coming at last to an aggressive, freshly painted sign beside a forking road.

Beware of the Dogs!

"That's it," she murmured, from her seat in the tonneau, as he slowed up and looked about to fix the surroundings in his memory. "The house is back on the hill to the left, behind the trees. To think that Celia's shut up there and I can't go to her! There's the barbed wire. See it?"

"That's easy. I'll get a wirecutter at Keene—no, Greenfield, tonight."

They drove on toward the local metropolis, where they purposed doing some shopping, but had gone only a short distance when they heard the engine of a heavy car whining as it came up a grade ahead, and Piggy drew aside to let it pass.

He had a fleeting glimpse of a gray-clad chauffeur behind the wheel, and in the tonneau a big, broad shouldered man whose cap was pulled low over his brow, leaving only his beaky nose, stubby dark mustache, and heavy jaw. As the car tore past them this man turned, eying them sharply, and Piggy thought he looked a good deal like a bulldog getting ready to spring. A second later he had disappeared around a curve in the road.

"Peter!" Roberta gasped, behind her veil. "Peter! That was my father! He's found out!"

"Ho-lee smoke!" said Piggy. "We've got to hump ourselves."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

Lydia E. Pinkham and Her Great Granddaughter

IF Lydia E. Pinkham were alive today she would be 107 years old. Her memory is revered by her descendants who continue to manufacture and market her famous Vegetable Compound.

From Lydia E. Pinkham to her great granddaughter, four generations have relied upon this dependable medicine. The happy school girl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, knows that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore and preserve her health.

Years ago, a mother gave this medicine to her fifteen year old daughter. The daughter married and became the mother of seven children. She writes, "I always took it before my babies were born and I know it gave me strength to keep up and do my work. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again and I am giving it to my oldest daughter."

Because this dependable medicine has proved its worth in her own family, she will answer letters from other women asking about it.

The club, the members of which are boy students at the Carroll School, is headed by Lester Core, youth who has vanquished all female competitors in sock darning and shirt mending contests.

The boy needle experts plan to compete with champion girl sewers of Sacramento county for the right to attend the state sewing meet at Davis, scheduled for October 18 to 20.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

Mary Voices Suspicion

PRESSING against my lips insistently at Mary Harrison's question concerning the identity of Jack Leslie, was an impassioned denunciation of the cabaret dancer, and a stern warning against him. But instinct as well as the knowledge of youthful feminine psychology gained from my years of high school teaching, kept back the derogatory words. That Dicky's niece was distinctly interested in the young man, because of his chivalry toward the fainting fourth-floor lodger, I could see very plainly, and I knew that I must be wary indeed in any attempt to discredit him.

"I'm sorry, Mary," I said at last, "but I was so anxious to get the door closed that I didn't catch exactly what you said."

She flashed a quick, mirthful glance at me, and I realized not for the first time, that she was possessed of unusually keen perceptions.

"If you were an ordinary person, Auntie Madge, I should say that you were stalling for time," she said audaciously. "But as it's you, I'll repeat the question. Isn't that 'Jack Leslie,' as he introduced himself, the one that Uncle Dicky calls the 'capering cock roach?'"

"Do You Approve of Him!"

"You are a very impertinent young woman," I said, "and if you received your just deserts, I should smack you instead of answering your question. But I believe you are right. I think he is the very man upon whom your Uncle Dicky bestowed that description. But you mustn't let that prejudice you. Your uncle, as you may have guessed, is violent in his dislikes and picturesque in his vocabulary."

Mary looked at me shrewdly.

"Do you approve of him yourself?" she asked.

I hesitated, anxious to tell the truth, yet unwilling to rouse her defensive instincts by the denunciation of the youth which I longed to utter.

"It is not exactly disapproval that I feel for him, Mary," I said, conscious that I would obey the familiar court injunction as to the "whole truth," if I added that "loathing" was the word which best expressed my reaction toward the cabaret dancer. "It is rather that I do not care particularly for his type. He is rather piffling and inconsequential, don't you think? But he was chivalrous this morning."

Mary Confirms Madge's Doubt

I made my tone lazily contemptuous, with the appearance of trying to discover some creditable trait in the youth. Mary shrugged her shoulders with a Gallic little gesture I knew she had been practicing ever since she had seen a famous actress use it in one of the plays Philip Veritzen had decreed for part of her education.

"Oh! I fancy he wouldn't be a half bad egg if somebody scraped the concrete off him," she said in the atrocious slang these young moderns affect. "But he's nothing in my young life. Tell me, Auntie Madge, are you really going up to see that Mrs. Baker who fainted?"

"I really am, Mary," I said achieving a smile with difficulty, for she had switched the subject far too quickly to assure me of her absolute indifference to Jack Leslie's unmistakable good looks and fascinating ways.

"I don't believe I'd bother with her," she said, and something in her tone made me look at her closely.

"Why do you say that, Mary?" I asked.

"Because," she answered surprisingly, "I don't believe she was really fainting. I think she was just shamming."

I started perceptibly at this confirmation of my own suspicions.

"What makes you think so?" I asked quietly.

"Because I caught her 'peeking,' as the children say, from underneath her lashes when she thought I'd turned my head," Mary answered. "But you've got to slip it to the old girl at that. Do you know, I believe she has been an actress at some time in her life."

JUDGE JUSTICE TO HEAR THREE SUITS SATURDAY

Actions Include White Oaks-Rd Extension; Foreclosure Money Suits

Three cases are to be heard by Judge Charles L. Justice in Common Pleas Court, Saturday morning, the most important action involving a dispute of Marion County Commissioners with The Columbus, Delaware, and Marion Electric Co.

The case concerns the extension of of the White Oaks-rd, in Pleasant Township. The extension of the road was first petitioned for by William F. Martin in June, 1922. The addition was to be about a half a mile in length, leading from John R. Courtney's property in Pleasant Township to the Prospect-rd.

Work Halted

In order to reach the Prospect-pk, the road must cross the C., D. & M. tracks. A ninjunction issued by court against the commissioners upon petition of the C., D. & M. Electric Co. has called a halt to the work.

The hearing Saturday is on a new petition of the county commissioners asking that they be granted the right to cross the tracks.

Other cases to be heard include a foreclosure suit of S. W. Fields against Elmer J. Kanause and an appeal money action of the Ohio Truss Co. against Myron G. Kennedy.

Seek Judgment

Asking judgment for $172.10, the Lumbermen's Casualty Co. of Chicago, today filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Harry aand Nellie Wong, 180 N. Main-st.

The casualty company asserts that it indemnified Dr. D. W. Brickley, Mt. Vernon-av, against loss on his Packard automobile, as a result of an accident in March, 1926, in which Mrs. Wong is alleged to have backed across N. Main-st and crashed into the Packard.

The casualty company avers that Mrs. Wong was not experienced with the use of the auto and was responsible for the crash. The damage amounted to $172.10 which the insurance company paid to Brickley, the petition states.

A marriage license was issued late yesterday afternoon to Marion W. Laucher, 29, Pleasant township, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Laucher, and Mrs. Maydell Schwaderer, 36, Pleasant township, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Knickle.

SEARCH RENEWED

Columbus, Oct. 8—Search was renewed today for A. A. Kerr, prominent businessman, whose disappearance is surrounded by mystery and who, his family declares, might have met with foul play. Kerr's trunk was found in Alum Creek and when it was raised, one of his shoes was discovered, police said. The creek was dragged last night without result.

PROMISE INDICTMENTS

Chicago, Oct. 8—Another wholesale batch of indictments similar to the 79 handed down against Cicero gansters and public officials a week ago, hovered over the Chicago city police department today as federal authorities launched their probe into the department's alleged bootlegging activities.

Which would you rather—that the gang should all groan loudly when you start an anecdote they'd heard, or that that should listen politely and greet it with deliberated laughs?

taken in." When the session ended a few minutes later, Green called First Vice President James Duncan to the platform and the two held a whispered conference. By this time the convention floor was a buzzing mass of little groups discussing the Eddy speech. The discussion continued far into the night in the hotel lobbies and elsewhere that the delegates congregated. The effect was to fan up the flame of feeling toward the "Y," and that had been subdued only by tactful handling when the convention recessed yesterday at noon.

It was disclosed that yesterday afternoon Eddy went to Vice President Duncan and asked Duncan for the floor. Duncan took him to John Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who understood he wished to speak in defense of the Y. M. C. A., as a representative of the international organization. With that impression, Walker introduced him to President Green, who, under the same impression allotted him a place on the late afternoon program.

The federation's reply to Eddy will come when the resolutions committee reports out a pending resolution for soviet recognition. It hada been expected that the convention would dispose of the Russian question by a simple expedient for an adverse report by the resolutions committee and a concurrence in that report by the convention as a whole, with little or no debate, a simple reiteration of the position heretofore taken in regard to Russia.

To Reopen "Y" Case

The Eddy incident, however, is expected to open the flood gates of opposition to the soviet and also to reopen the Y. M. C. A. question for further debate.

The convention yesterday afternoon made its first direct more in its announced war on Detroit's "open shop" labor system by unanimously adopting a resolution proposed by the metal trades division of the federation to inaugurate a general organizing campaign in the automobile industry at the earliest possible date. Eighty per cent of this industry, the third largest in the United States, is centered in and around Detroit and it represents the major part of Detroit's industrial life.

A half dozen other resolutions to further organiznztion activities in general were adopted also, but nope was of particular significance.

The convention this morning resumed the hearing of committee reports on pending resolutions.

write a scenario for him declaring his sole future objective was to improve the level of art throughout the world.

"I listened quietly to him, and at the end of the half hour, in bidding him goodbye, I remarked: 'I'm afraid, Mr. Goldwyn, that we shall not ever be able to do business together. You see, you're an artist and care only about art, while I'm only a tradesman and care only about money.'

"Griffith is an excellent example of the American producer today. Unless he spends thousands and thousands of dollars, he doesn't thing his picture is any good. When he was over here, I told him I could produce far better films than he could for about five cents each.

To Much "Mob"

"American producers have too much love for mob scenes, which don't increase the impressiveness of the film whatsoever.

"Chaplin is about the only producer who seems to understand it. In 'The Gold Rush' he produced a better effect by showing men straggling along two at a time over the snow bit of snow than he would have if he had covered the landscape with thousands of toiling men.

"Chaplin seems to be the best producer. He wastes very little and when he gets this effect, he snaps off at once. I realize of course, that to prevent wastage is extremely difficult."

In carrying out this program, the organization holds four meetings throughout the year in different counties of the district.

ILLINOIS RIVER STILL RISING AT BEARDSTOWN

Heroic Efforts of Townspeople Save City from Water Famine

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 8—Following a brief five-hour respite from the flood, during which the water mark fell several inches due to the breaking of more levees spreading the water over a larger area, the flood waters of the Illinois River continued to rise today.

From Peoria, the foci for the attention of all concerned with the flood, word was received late last night that the water was rising and had buried railroad tracks beneath a two-foot blanket of water. Somewhere beneath a three-foot sheet of water in South Beardstown are the tracks of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, which has been compelled to suspend through service.

Heroic efforts by townspeople here saved the city from lack of drinking water which was to have been shut off at noon yesterday because of lack of coal to operate the pumps. All available water craft was pressed into service to carry fuel to the large boiler rooms. The plant was then able to continue operation.

Bathtubs, milk bottles and shaving mugs were cleaned and filled with water as the official word was flashed that it would be necessary to shut off the water. Railroad officials, corporation heads and leaders in relief work poured into the city today as the crisis approached.

Sheriff D. C. Byus, and a deputy, Edward Caldwell, arrived last night and will take active charge of policing the heaviest flooded areas, to prevent possible looting.

WILL ATTEMPT SWIM OF HUDSON IN FOUR DAYS

New York's Only Woman Life Guard To Try To Better Carson Mark

New York, Oct. 8—An attempt to swim the 160 miles in the Hudson River from Albany to New York will be made Sunday morning by Lotty Moore Schoemmel, New York's only woman life guard.

Mrs. Schoemmel expects to make the distance in four days, swimming during the day and sleeping aboard a launch at night. She will attempt to swim 70 miles the first day, starting under the Albany Bridge about 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The time of Mlle. Gade Corson, woman channel swimmer, for the same swim was six days.

Mrs. Schoemmel recently swam 44½ miles around Manhattan Island in 14 hours, 11 minutes. She set a record of five hours and 57 minutes for the 21-mile swim from the Battery to Sandy Hook, against the record of seven and 11 minutes held by Gertrude Ederle, first woman to conquer the English Channel.

A woman is seldom interested in her husband's letters unless they are marked "personal."

the Elizabeth Murray listed in "Who's Who in America," she is a daughter of former United States Senator Benjamin E. Murray and a descendant of Mary Lindley Murray, heroine of the Revolutionary War, a former student at Stanford and Northwestern Universities, Meadville Theological School, Lombard College, Chicago School of Philanthropy, Cincinnock School of Oratory, Nabraska, College of Oratory and London University.

Married in 1913

She married Judge Frank Shepherd, Chicago, in 1913, and has one daughter. She won a prize in an interscholastic contest of the Northwestern University Northern Oratorical League in 1909 and the poetry prize of the Boston Herald in 1920. She was head of the Department of English at Salem W. Va. College in 1921 and 1922.

Mrs. Murray made a world tour from 1922 to 1925 to gather material for the first universal history of women. She organized and is president of the Writers' and Artists' Colony at Persian Gardens, Tampa, Fla. She founded the International Woman's Magazine and served on war board in California. She was one of the organizers of the California State Suffrage Association and is a member of the American Pen Women of the Baptist Church.

In 1913 she wrote a novel "My Kingdom," and when arrested Thursday she had several magazines containing articles bearing her signature.

In "Who's Who," Mrs. Murray's addresses are given as the Mayflower Hotel, Washington and the Writers' and Artists' Colony, Tampa, Fla.

Mr. Gauvey and others who talked with Mrs. Murray during her visits here say that she has a very pleasing personality and that her conversation clearly stamps her as a woman of exceptional education and intelligence.

When arrested she was attractively attired in blue and presented a generally prosperous appearance. She had registered at one hotel and her chauffeur at another. The chauffeur, Howard Turbitt of Detroit, said that Mrs. Murray had hired him in Detroit about 10 days ago.

more than a bump in the road. If old Alex can hold the Ruppert rifles at bay once more in tomorrow's tussle, everything will be right back where it started.

While the Yankees have the advantage of a home field and home crowd for the deciding contest, or contests, that doesn't mean a great deal with a good road club like the Cardinals and a non-partisan New York crowd.

Strain To Be Less

It is just possible that getting away from St. Louis may be the best thing that could have happened to the Cards. Certainly, all those parades and back slapping they went through didn't help them any. They were pressing pretty badly yesterday because they knew that great home crowd was expecting to much of them. In that way the strain will be less in New York, where, after all, a world's series is only a world's series.

If it should go to the seventh game, Jess Haines is sure to pitch for St. Louis, while Huggins will choose between Shawkey and Ruether. The chances are that Shawkey will get the call. He has been a right smart pitcher lately. No opposing team has scored on him in the last seventeen innings he worked.

"A demonstration car equipped by Ohio State University will be a part of the Better Dairy train which will be on the Erie tracks here. Moving pictures will be shown in the demonstration car.

"The Better Dairy train work is similar to a farmers' institute only it is much better because the train has three cars loaded with Jersey, Holstein, Guernsey and Ayrshire bulls all from officially tested mothers.

"All the bulls on the special train will be priced reasonably so that men owning grade cattle can afford to buy," concluded Secretary Barlow.

REBUILDING OF MATTRESS PLANT TO END IN 10 DAYS

Section of Factory Destroyed by Fire Month Ago Being Replaced

Reconstruction of the building occupied by the Smith Mattress Co., 102-108 Blaine ave., will be completed within the next 10 days, weather permitting, Edwin P. Smith, president of the company, announced today.

The rear rooms of the mattress company were destroyed by fire about a month ago, damage totalling approximately $10,000.

Business in the mattress factory, however, was held up for only a few days. Immediately following the destruction of the rooms and several machines, the manager of the factory wired for new machinery and placed it in operation in another part of the partially destroyed structure.

Two new pickers and a new threader have been purchased and the company at present is able to handle all orders.

The new machine room is under roof today and the garage will be completed within a few days. The rebuilt sections of the factory are fireproof.

The interior of the factory will receive the finishing touches within the next ten days, the machinery will be installed in the new shop, and the mattress company will again be working on the regular schedule.

Glad You're Back!

All Summer long it has worried us to see so many homes deserted—without even caretakers to look after them. In a neighboring town a fire started in a vacated home and was not discovered until it was too late to save anything. Suppose it had been yours!

Furnace fires will soon be lighted, and, simultaneously, property damage by fire will increase. After all, COMPLETE insurance is your only safeguard at any season of the year.

SHINGLE ROOFS WILL SOON BE TABOO, CLAIM

Fire Chief McFarland Tells Kiwanis Club Fireproof Roofs Roofs Coming in Usage

"The time is not far distant when fireproof roofs will replace shingle roofs", declared Fire Chief T. J. McFarland, Kiwanian, in his Friday "Fire Prevention" address before members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly noon luncheon at Harding Hotel.

"By this statement I do not wish to convey the meaning that we are attempting or going to attempt to remove any of the old shingle roofs," continued the chief. "But what I do mean is that in time to come, say five years or more, shingle roofs will be passe.

"By legislation it will be possible to require fire resisting roofs on all buildings under construction and repair. In this way the laying of shingle roofs will be prohibited and in time all the old shingle roofs will be gone. That will be one happy day for firemen. And, it should be a day for everyone's rejoicing because of the fact that it will signify the elimination of many fires and thereby benefit all residents of the city.

Firemen's Greatest Fear

"The greatest fear of firemen is the destruction of factories.

"With damage to our factories comes idleness and want among the laborers. That picture alone should be impressive enough without saying anything about the direct loss of property.

"Because of the importance of maintaining steady operation, manufacturers, both big and small, have equipped their properties and constructed them in such a manner that very little damage can result from fire. For this reason we have very few big fires in our industrial centers.

"Firemen well equipped are one of life's greatest needs.

"Boys and matches cause a good majority of the fires in the residential section.

"Business men in this city are very careful and trustworthy regarding fires. I regard Marion's business men the most reliable and honest of any group in Ohio.

1925 Total

"Our business district fires in 1925 totaled $7,264.13 and industrial losses totaled $800. Two big fires in automobile garages made a loss of $234,000 last year while the loss reported for the rest of the city only amounted to $20,000 in 1925.

"Garages with big open floor spaces are considered our greatest hazards today. But, because of their purpose and daily use by the public it is almost impossible to better them from a fire prevention standpoint.

"Superintendents, principals and teachers in our public schools are doing a great work in fire prevention. Daily they warn and instruct regarding great fire losses.

Shingle Roof Fires

"Referring again to shingle roof fires, I wish to state in closing that we do not wish to infringe upon anyone's rights or interfere in any way with business. When we cite any property or business place as a fire hazard, we do it for the public's benefit.

"Last year we had 61 shingle roof fires making a loss totaling $6,000, in amounts ranging from two, three or four dollars to $100, or more.

"This year we have received a total of 46 calls to burning shingle roofs where losses totalling $9,000 resulted. This number of calls does not include 11 where chimneys were burned out. Burning chimneys, in a majority of cases, are the cause of shingle roof fires.

Kiwanian Activities

Marion's Kiwanians will be busier than usual next week. They have been invited and urged to attend the inter-city meeting Wednesday night at Fremont. Seven have signified their intentions of attending.

A larger number are planning to motor to Delaware Thursday night at which time they will be guests of the neighboring city's newly organized club.

Membership Campaign

Kiwanians are planning to launch their annual campaign for new members within the next week or two. Only a few new memberships will be enrolled at this time according to club reports, which are to the effect that the quota is nearly filled.

Marion's Kiwanians are among the most active in Ohio, according to a report received this week from Columbus headquarters. This report further states that Ohio Kiwanis clubs are actively interested and have been supporting all the state's progressive movements.

FORMER CARDINGTON MAN TELLS OF STORM

Letter Received by Mrs. William Reed from Son in Florida

The terrors of the Florida disaster are related in the following letter which was recently received by Mrs William Reed, 351 N Main st, from H D Singer, Hialeah, Florida, formerly of Cardington The letter in part follows:

Sept 28, '26
Hialeah, Fla,

Dear Mother and Dad.

I will tell you the story of the storm from start to finish.

On Thursday, Sept. 23 we made ready all day and had plenty of large orders After we closed the factory I went down to our store where Annabell was.

About 8:00 an extra paper came out warning everybody to fasten all windows and doors and get in a safe place and for nobody to be out after 12 o'clock.

We had some friends at the store and they asked us to come and stay with them that night, so we did. Lucky!

About 11 o'clock the wind started to blow about 50 miles per hour and kept it up. We closed the store at 11:30 and went over to our friends' house.

House Caves

At around 3:30 a. m. the sun parlor caved in lights all went out. The next ten minutes it was terrible, we could not see. All at once the house caved in We were on the second floor. I grabbed hold of Annabell and threw her on the floor and fell on top of her and a timber fell across my back It was a bad blow but I did not pay any attention to that. We crawled out of the wrecked house, on our hands and knees—Annabel, myself, and our little dog with us.

110 Mile Wind

At this time the wind was around 110 miles an hour. At 4:30 we crawled to our auto and the air was full of wreckage, so we got in the Hudson and covered up with canvas and stayed the balance of the first storm out there.

Rescue Work

Daylight.

We thought it was all over and went to the church to help care for the injured people. I worked on the ambulance bringing in the dead and wounded.

We had 15 on one load from those injured with cuts, to dead, some backs broken, heads cut off, arms and legs cut off and everything that could happen.

The wind started to blow again at 7:30 Wind changed from northeast to southeast. Now this is where the storm started in its worst stage. Rain and wind blowing 110 miles an hour.

We expected a tidal wave and we could not see, wind getting from 10:30 to 11:00 150 miles an hour. Everything torn down.

The church was still standing with only part gone. About 200 wounded bleeding to death and dying all over the floor I was finally able to move again so Dr Lamb and I started to give first aid. The blood was thick all over the floor, and was running off my elbows helping the doctor in sewing up wounds.

Wind Subsides

At 1:30 p m. wind started to slow up and then they began to bring more people in. It was surely terrible and it is impossible for me to describe all.

Hialeah is entirely wiped off the map. Everything is gone but about 50 places.

The Red Cross is starting to build Hialeah up again, they say they are going to build it just as it was which will be fine.

Everybody has a good spirit here now. Plenty of food and clothing and places to live.

My factory and supplies all blew away, books, papers and everything, so we will have to start over again.

Lovingly
Your Son,
Haze Singer.

PLANT JUICE GAVE MRS. NEFF LASTING RESULTS

Youngstown Woman Gained 15 Pounds And Hasn't Felt Trace Of Old Troubles Since Taking This Medicine Year Ago.

"A year ago I told about the wonderful Plant Juice and now I want you to know all those results have been lasting" declares Mrs Abram Neff of 326 N Walnut St, Youngstown O

"When I told others of my cure by Plant Juice and how it built me up 15 pounds of solid flesh" continues Mrs. Neff "I was told by many that they would try it but I have never heard from them. I am glad to tell you that I have never had a sick day since I took Plant Juice and I am still gaining in weight and strength

"My husband and I began taking the Plant Juice at about the same time and we are both enjoying the best of health. Our friends are glad to hear of our good luck and through my recommendation several have taken Plant Juice with splendid results

"I was all run down and nervous. I had no appetite and could not sleep. My head ached most of the time and I had dizzy spells. My stomach was in terrible condition. Gas would form after eating and cause a pressure around my heart that almost smothered me. I had pains in my back and sides and my chest just kept me in misery. There were awful pains across my back, too, and although I had always boasted of being a busy person these troubles certainly took all my strength and energy

"But Plant Juice just gave me the best kind of an appetite and fixed me up so I could eat meats, potatoes and any kind of food I wish and digest it properly All those nervous headaches disappeared and that worn out feeling left me, and I weighed 130 pounds when I started to take Plant Juice. Now I weigh 100 to 115 pounds

"I never have to take Plant Juice any more, and am never without it. Plant Juice is simply wonderful. I have been happy and well ever since and my husband has taken Plant Juice too and recommends it just as highly as I do"

Plant Juice is sold in Marion by Brown Drug Co. and other leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

PLAN BENEFIT FOOTBALL GAME FOR MAKEEVER

Alumni To Oppose Mt. Gilead High School Gridders Saturday, Nov. 6

Mt Gilead, Oct. 8—Plans are being made by school officials to have a football game Saturday, November 6 for the benefit of Jack Makeever, who is in Grant hospital at Columbus following a kidney injury in the foot ball game with Danville last Friday The game will be played with the Alumni Don Murray and Fred Wykind, halfbacks on last years team, will have charge of assembling a team for the game

The alumni have been more or less disgruntled over the action of school officials in scheduling Upper Sandusky to play here on Thanksgiving Day, as this date has been the annual encounter of the High School and alumni for several years It was decided to play a high school on that date for the reason that the alumni game has failed to attract a very considerable crowd.

However, this will give the alumni an opportunity to meet the school, and at the same time provide a means of securing funds to help repay Makeever's large expenses at the hospital

The date was originally scheduled with Granville High. It was necessary to call off this game for the reason that the game could not be played at Granville on either Friday or Saturday.

Reports from the hospital indicate that Makeever's condition is improving

REPORT WORLD SHIPPING STILL IS DEPRESSED

Recovery from War Effects Not in Sight, Washington Report Shows

Washington, Oct. 8—Recovery of world shipping from the postwar depression is not yet in sight, according to A. E. Sanderson, of the transportation division of the department of commerce.

"Overseas trade in general has made but slow progress, owing in a large measure to the economic weakness of Europe, where retarded rehabilitation has offset gains in other directions," Sanderson declared.

"Consequently the balance between ships and cargoes has not yet been restored."

The volume of world's overseas trade today barely equals that of 1913. On the other hand tonnage of shipping now in existence is much greater than the year before the war.

Large Tonnage Increase

Registers of shipping indicate an increase in seagoing steel and iron and motor vessels of more than 10,000,000 gross tons, or 39 per cent.

"The actual position is not so unfavorable, however," Sanderson pointed out, "for a considerable amount of this tonnage is obsolete and will never again be placed in operation."

Summarizing conditions throughout the world July 1, as compared with those a year ago, Sanderson made the following points.

Idle steam shipping was considerably less.

Full cargo freight in general were somewhat lower.

Shipping in existence was slightly greater.

Overseas trade appeared to be about the same in volume.

Ship building declined.

No material change in sales value of ships.

The steam shipping laid up in principal maritime countries of the world July 1, aggregated about 6,086,000 gross tons, an increase of 211,000 tons over the total on January 1. It was a decrease of 667,000 tons below the total of a year ago.

Reduction in U. S.

In United States there was a reduction of 303,000 tons during the six months, but this fall was more than offset by the rise in the United Kingdom, which amounted to 613,000 tons, or more than 100 per cent.

An importane development took place in the employment of privately owned American shipping during the past fiscal year, in that more than half a million gross tons of steamers and motor vessels were added to the active sea-going fleet. General cargo carriers represented the bulk of the addition with relatively small increases in passenger ships and tankers.

There was a decline in the employment of government owned American shipping which totalled somewhat less than a quarter million gross tons. The net increase in active American shipping on July 1, as compared to a year earlier, was 250,000 gross tons.

BRITISH CLIMATE MAKES AMERICAN WATCHES LAZY

London, Oct. 8— Britain's climate makes American watches lazy, is the fixed belief of many visitors from the United States.

Many of them observe that a watch that never varies in America will lose two minutes a day in London. Evidently American watches need to a dry crisp climate find London a trifle enervating and react accordingly.

It is for this reason that the management of the Savoy Hotel say they always keep the principal clock in the vestibule three minutes ahead of Greenwich time.

Alexander Will Greet Yankees Saturday in New York

Manager Hornsby Confident That He Still Has Winning Advantage Over Yankees

There Shouldn't Have Been a Tenth Inning Thursday, Says St. Louis Leader, Who Is Willing To Match Two Wins Against Opponent's Two Losses

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

ENROUTE to New York, Oct. 8—"I'll match my two winners against their two losers and ask favors of no man."

That was Rogers Hornsby's final word as he boarded a train for the East with his St. Louis Cardinals in tow for the sixth game of the world series with the New York Yankees at the stadium on Saturday, and today the intelligentsia were disposed to string along with the young man's viewpoint.

The Cards may be one down and two play on this series, but the fact that Hornsby had Alexander and Haines, his two winning pitchers to match against Huggins' two losers, Shocker and Ruether, was not to be laughed off in a high falsetto. Life might have been ebbing fast from Cardinal hopes today, but all animation was by no means extinct.

Alexander Starts Again

Alexander will pitch the Saturday pastime in New York and if he can show 60 per cent of the game he showed the first time they took the blanket off him, the Cards can't be any worse than an even bet for that particular occasion.

For the entire series, the Yanks, perforce, ranked a 2 to 1 favorite on the basis of elementary mathematics. The Cards had to take two ball games to win the series; the Yanks only one.

And unless the boys get around to the matter of catching pop flies, the best exhibiton of pitching that Alexander and Haines might care to uncover will get them slightly less than nothing. Bill Sherdel turned loose a left-handed epic yesterday and all he got was a pain in the collar and his second straight defeat in the series at the hands of Herb Pennock. What the Yanks did to Bill was little, if anything. What the Cards did to him was simple, sufficient and enough.

Pennock Is Lucky

The first allen run scored when Hafey stepped on his silly foot and lost Pennock's drive for a two base hit, so called, and he came on in on Koenig's single to left. But before this transpired, they trapped Pennock off second but lost him again when Thevenow dropped the ball. In other words, Pennock was out twice before he scored the first run.

The second came in the ninth and tied the score. The manner in which it was scored was enough to make one weep silently into the folds of his vest. Gehrig hit a high fly over the infield for what should have been the first out. It wasn't. The wind carried the ball away from Thevenow while the limping Hafey was nowhere, so the ball dropped safe for a double. Lazzeri then prepared to lay down his sacrificial life, but the Cards wouldn't have it that way. Bell was caught on his flat feet and it went for a hit. Gehrig rumbling to third. He scored when Paschal looped another lazy fly over the infield, to far out for Thevenow and too far in for Holm.

Late Victory Means Nothing

"I have no interest in the fact that the Yanks won in the tenth inning. The fact of the matter is that there shouldn't have been any tenth inning at all. However, it is becoming more apparent with each passing year that the disposition of world series spoils is being decreed by fate. The Senators in 1924 had to fluke in the tying run on a badly bounding hit in the ninth and the winning run on a carbon copy of the same play. Apparently, both balls hit the same lump of dirt, which is not the beginning of a bed time story, but the truth, the entire truth and nothing but.

There were plenty of breaks in the stygian gloom of the 1925 finale and the Pirates got all of them, though truth to tell they forced them. They were a fighting outfit who refused to die with their boots on because they refused to die at all.

Maybe the Cards will come back the way the Senators and Pirates did. I wouldn't bet that they will and I wouldn't bet that they won't. I'm cured.

It all depends on yourself, young man, whether you leave footprints on the sands of time behind you, or only leave thumb prints behind you.

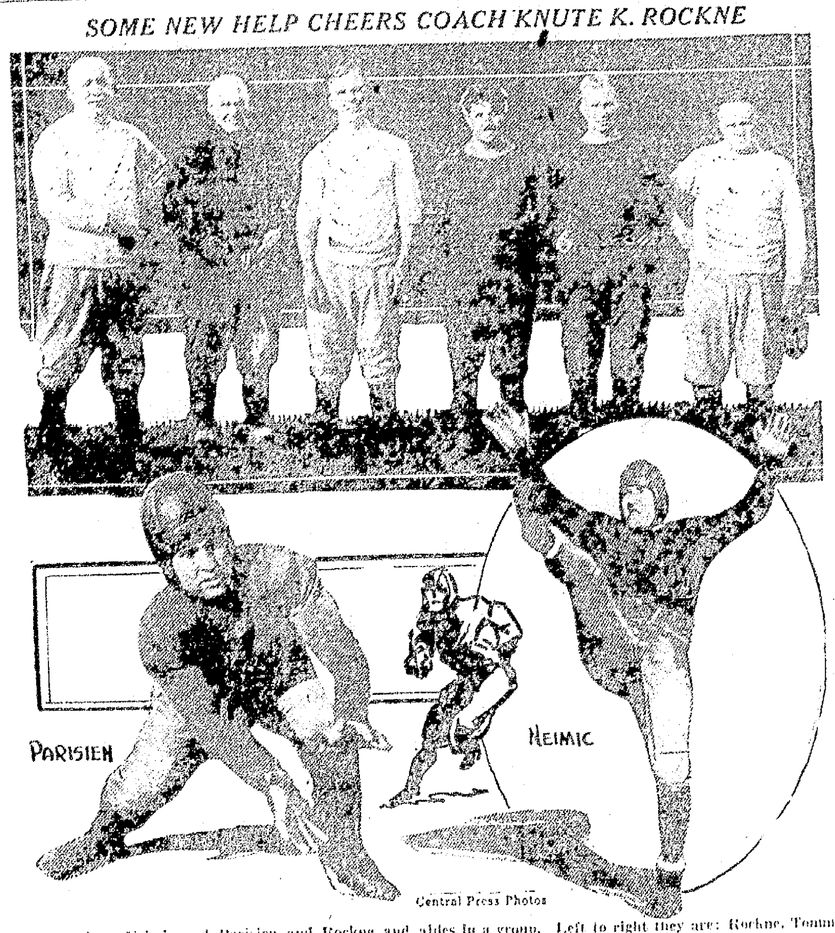
SOME NEW HELP CHEERS COACH KNUTE K. ROCKNE



Central Press Photos

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 8—Notre Dame's 1926 football season promises to be as great as any ever experienced by the Rox with the possible exception of 1920 and 1924 when the national championship football growns were awarded to the South Bend institution.

Knute K. Rockne, developer of great teams, is feeling optimistic. He is not shedding near the number of tears he has in bygone years, and his face wears a constant smile.

The master coach has an ace up his sleeve, in fact two aces, in Neimic and Parisien. The former, a freshman from last year, is the punter and pass tosser that has appeared on Cartier field since the time Gus Dorias, now coach at Detroit, tossed the inflated pigskin with reckless abandon to Knute Rockne, who played end. This pair started and developed the aerial game. Neimic promises to perfect it.

Parisien is a quarterback from last year, but he was only allowed to appear in one game and then for just one play. It was at Minneapolis against Minnesota that Parisien was injected into the game. On the first play he scooped up a fumble on the four-yard line and sprinted 85 yards down the gridiron before being pressed out of bounds. Eastern fans will remember him as the great quarterback at Andover several years ago.

These two are expected to bring the backfield up to the quality of the famous "Four Horsemen," who started in 1921.

Ike Voedisch, an end, promises to be the receiving end for Neimic's passes. Also for Parisien who can throw the ball accurately with either hand.

Chris Flanagan, star halfback from last season, is back again. He is a second Don Miller, and should be of great assistance in helping the Rox tuck many games away this year.

The men behind Notre Dame's football fortunes this season are working hard. In other years Knute K. Rockne, athletic director and football coach, with but one assistant put the Rox on the field.

Rockne's Assistant

This year Tommy Mills, veteran coach at Beloit college, is Rockne's chief assistant. Then comes Hartley Anderson, former Notre Dame star of 1919-20 and 21. Jim Vignos, end at Notre Dame, in 1921, is acting with the wing men. Basil Stanley has charge of the freshmen. He is a former Notre Dame star of 1917 vintage. Stanley is assisted by Pete Merloni, end last year on Little Rock college team.

This is the largest staff Notre Dame has ever employed to develop its football fortunes. However, Rockne is still the main gun behind the works, and supervises all developments. He and Mills are the only two full time coaches. All except Anderson are students who are back to get higher degrees in their scholastic work. Anderson works in South Bend and aids Rockne in the afternoon.

REGULARS START WESLEY'N-STATE GAME SATURDAY

Coach Jack Wilce Has Only Two Possible Changes

Columbus, O., Oct. 8—With one or two possible exceptions, the same eleven that faced Wittenberg last week in the opening game will get the call tomorrow for Ohio State against Ohio Wesleyan here in the Stadium. The entire squad came out of the initial battle in good shape and is available for the annual duel with the Methodists.

If Head Coach Jack Wilce shuffles his cards at all, the chances are it will be to start Byron Eby in place of Elmer Marek in the backfield, or to give Leo Uridil a whirl at the right tackle job in place of Joe Cox.

Eby, a Chillicothe product and the 1925 freshman captain, gave a fine account of himself after he relieved Marek in the Wittenberg contest. He showed some of the finest open field running that has been seen here in some time. Marek got a slightly bruised shoulder in the opener, but is expected to be back in his stride by tomorrow.

Uridil was one of three slightly ailing veterans who did not break into the Wittenberg engagement. The other two were Robin Bell, erstwhile back who is now playing end, and Fred Grim, halfback.

Uridil was a regular tackle at the end of the 1925 campaign, but suffered an injured knee soon after practice started this fall. Mike Chambers, new varsity trainer, has pronounced him fit again, and he may be nominated for the Wesleyan game in place of Cox, who is a sophomore.

For the rest the Buckeye coaches probably will stick to last week's starting line-up, which included Rowan and Alber, ends; Rawkowski, tackle; Meyer and Hess, guards; Kelin, center; Clark quarterback; Kruskamp, halfback, and Captain Karow, fullback.

In all, Coach Wilce used 30 athletes against Wittenberg. This enabled him to get a much more definite line on the squad than the practice sessions afforded. One pleasing thing about the combat was that the Buckeyes were able to gain practically at will on simple, straight football.

Tomorrow's game is the twenty-eighth tilt between the Methodists and the Buckeyes. Of the previous contests, Ohio State has won 24, Ohio Wesleyan two, and one was tied.

In spite of the fact that Ohio State's string of victories is unbroken since 1897, when Wesleyan won 6 to 0, the Buckeyes are taking nothing for granted. They remember that the Methodists have come uncomfortably close to winning on a number of occasions in recent years. They know, too, that the invaders always put a smart, well coached team on the field.

The game tomorrow is the last at home appearance of the Ohio Staters until October 23 when Iowa comes here. A week hence they will be making Big Ten history with their invasion of New York to play Columbia at the Polo Grounds.

ATLANTIC LEAGUE CATCHER GOES TO NEW YORK YANKS

Baxter Williams, young sensational catcher of the Greenville club of the South Atlantic League, which won the pennant in that circuit, has been purchased by the Yankees for a tryout.

BROTHER WILL PLAY FOR RESERVE STAR FULLBACK

Cleveland, Oct. 8—Brother will replace brother in the Western Reserve lineup Saturday in the game with Hiram there. Fritz Phypers, star fullback and mainstay of the Reserve team, will be out of the lineup as the result of a severe attack of laryngitis which has kept him off the gridiron for the past several days. He sustained an injured knee in the game with Baldwin-Wallace last Saturday, but it was reported in good shape. Paul Phypers, Fritz' older brother, will take his place at full. Paul is a regular halfback.

ILLINOIS TRIES FOUR NEW MEN IN BACKFIELD

Team Work Specialized When Stars Fail To Appear

Chicago, Oct. 8—There won't be another "Red" Grange at the University of Illinois for many many years.

Bob Zuppke, the "strong..." who taught the mighty Grange little about the gridiron game ... to see to that.

Coach Zuppke is training his ... field men this fall with the ... will be no chance for the development of an out-standing star.

He is drilling his squad with ... work as the central theme ... isn't the slightest chance of a ... Grange springing up on the Orange and Blue campus, according to those who have watched "Zup" at work ...

Janum, Timm, Peters and ... herity are the four backs destined to fill the job the great "Red" left when he deserted amateur ranks.

Zuppke has christened his ... the "Four Mules" and is known ... doing everything possible to ... the development of a great ... back, who might attract Mr. "Grantland" Rice" Pyle.

The Illinois mentor is sold on the possibilities of his back field, although it is green and unimproved, and is set on repeating the Illini victory of last season over Pennsylvania.

In selecting his "Four Mules" Zuppke has gone entirely over the heads of three veteran backs, Gallivan, Leonard and Green, and his action is giving the call to the three untried sophomores has created intense interest.

The three veterans, with ... Stewart, are making up the Orange and Blue second string backfield and when the "Mules" show something ... does not look for the more seasoned men will remain in the offing ... entire season.

Zuppke has consistently refused to discuss Grange's entry into professional football but it is said by his friends that the step of "Red" left the coach crestfallen.

Illini followers declare that Zuppke's branding of his backfield as the "Mules", as a take-off on Notre Dame's famed "Horsemen," his selection of sophomores to battle for places against veterans in the backfield and his general attitude not to permit his backfield men to think too well of themselves are certain indications "Zup" is determined he will never turn out another Grange.

Plummer came out of the west two years ago and showed Cleveland fans a brand of football seldom witnessed on local gridirons. Last year, however, injuries and the wet weather combined to hold him in check. Carroll fans are looking forward to a great year for Plummer this season.

ANOTHER ALIBI

Walter Reuther, released by Washington, was dropped because he would not obey the training rules, say Washington writers. Reuther's recent lassitude hurt the club as much as the irregular work of Joe Bush earlier in the year, they say.

MINNEAPOLIS IS GOOD

Minneapolis is playing the best ball in the Association now, and playing against Toledo Louisville, Indianapolis and Milwaukee, all first divison clubs. Nevertheless the Millers are in seventh place.

The first person to forget a favor is the receiver thereof.

CAPTAIN WHEELER THROWS BIG SCARE INTO INDIANA CAMP

WHITE SOX ARE CHICAGO CHAMPS

Blankenship Blanks Cubs, 3 to 0, in Seventh Game of Series

Chicago, Oct. 8—Chicago's major league baseball players comprising the White Sox and Cubs, were entraining for their homes today, following the windup battle of the city series.

The White Sox regained the city championship winning four of the seven games played. The deciding game was played yesterday at Cubs Park. Ted Blankenship shut out the Nationals, 3 to 0.

The Bruins out-hit the Sox 8 to 7, but Root and Blake were liberal with assesp, several of which figured in the scoring.

RETURNS TO CARROLL

Cleveland—The prospects of a strong line for John Carroll University's football team were increased last week with the arrival at the Blue Streak camp of Dick Quinn, veteran tackle. It was feared that the lanky westerner would not return to school this year, and the fact that he was not present when the Carroll gridder went into camp lent color to the rumor. But Quinn arrived a few days later and says he is in top-notch condition.

JOE SEWELL HAS RECORD

Joe Sewell, Clevealnd shortstop, seems to be on the way for the consecutive game record. He has missed but one game since 1920, and now has run his string to about 750 games. And he is still a youngster.

CLOSE UPS OF BIG TEN INNING YANKEE VICTORY

Manager Miller Huggins' Boys Get Five-to-One Breaks

Enroute to New York, Oct. 8 At the end of the game, the breaks stood five to one in favor of the Yanks. The latter's only bad luck came in the sixth when the wind held Lazzeri's long fly inside the park with the bases filled. But as far as that went, Lazzeri wouldn't have been at bat at all except for Pennock's lucky double.

* * *

Douthit would have caught Paschal's fly that scored the tying run in the ninth: that is Douthit would have done so if he wasn't sitting on the bench.

* * *

The only thing you catch there is a lot of splinters.

But Douthit's absence caused by his collision with Hafey on Wednesday, was not as detrimental as Hafey's presence. The latter couldn't get up with flies hit in his direction because of his leg injury.

* * *

The boys used to hold St. Louis up for consideration as the hotbed of feudal bias. But no more. The stands made a hero of Ruth without having to give the proposition their best effort.

* * *

Lazzeri has proved two things, i. e. and to wit, tha the can hit a baseball with much fervor and that he can run into more trouble than a blind man on a motorcycle. He tried to stretch a double out of all proportion to its worth with none out on Wednesday and yesterday he romped blithely into a tag-out double play with a run already over the plate.

* * *

Our Mr. Ruth walked twice but otherwise spent a sedate afternoon at the plate. But his one hand catch of Hafey's foul in the fourth was a gem of purest ray serene.

* * *

If the Yanks win the series and no one is betting that they won't, they will be the first club to win a world's series title with a sieve for an infield.

When Mr. Huggins decided that he needed a substitute for Dugan, he sent Gazella to third base. That one brought down the house. Just try that infield on your mouth organ some time: Gehrig, Lazzeri, Koenig and Gazella. Just a mouthful of consonants.

Shedrel pitched two fine ball games and lost both. Hoyt stumbled through a terrible thing and won. There ain't on justice in this life.

CAPTAIN KAROW, FULLBACK, LEADS BUCKEYE ELEVEN

CHICAGO SOCIETY TO TAKE PART IN BOXING DE LUXE

Mullen Hopes To Make Ringside Full Dress Circle

Chicago, Oct. 09—This city is to have boxing de luxe.

Jim Mullen, Chicago's leading fight impressario, tired of just making money, is going to while away the hours promoting the business of cauliflowered ears for society folks.

Mullen has taken over a building in the heart of the "gold coast," the city's millionaire colony along Lake Michigan and beginning this month will stage boxing shows in a glowing setting.

Referees, ushers and all attendants will appear in formal evening wear, Mullen has announced.

The building is being revamped and will sport a ring heavily hung in velvet with velvet-covered ring ropes, solid silver mountings and handstitched towels for the boxer's seconds.

Seats at Mullen's society cards will range in price from $5 to $10.

Mullen has announced that already the leaders of Chicago society have subscribed for several hundred seats monthly and the success of his new venture is assured.

In line with the idea to give the social lions only the best entertainment, Mullen has decided to feature his cards with bouts between college boxers, turned professional, and the more "refined" type of punchers.

Fighters, whose features are marked by their efforts in past engagements will not be employed by the promoter at his new club, in order that the ultra among the fans will not be offended.

Youths with clean-cut features, sheikish hair and other sartorial splendor are now being sought by Mullen to interest his "gold coast" patrons.

CLEVELAND GRID TEAMS PLAYING IMPORTANT TILTS

Reserve Must Show Ohio Conference Wares at Hiram

Cleveland, Oct. 8—Whether Western Reserve's football eleven is really to be counted among the select of Ohio Conference grid outfits will be partially settled this Saturday afternoon when it plays Hiram at Hiram.

Coach Gordon Locke, in his first game as Reserve mentor, has put a new punch into the team which last year seemed destined to chaos. Locke has a set of mystifying plays which are executed by backs that are blocking better than last year. Reserve's offense is commendable.

This was all evidenced in the game against Baldwin-Wallace last Saturday, Baldwin-Wallace was swamped by the Cleveland outfit, 39-0. They held Oberlin, which was undefeated since 1924 to one touchdown the week before.

But the strength of the Pioneer's defense is yet to be tested. It didn't have a chance to use it against Baldwin-Wallace.

Justin Platz, sophomore quarter and halfback, was one of the four second-year men who started the game Saturday that showed up well. Platz made two touchdowns on runs of 45 yards each. Fritz Phypers, who played with Amherst in his freshman year and who now handles the fullback position on Reserve's eleven, will be unable to take part in practice the rest of the week, owing to injuries received last Saturday. If he is unable to make the start this week, he will probably be replaced by Emil Ersay, another sophomore.

Wooster Visits Case

Wooster, which defeated Ashland 13 to 0, meets Case here Saturday in one of the two local collegiate games of the day. In the other clash, John Carroll meets the University of Dayton in the Luna park stadium. "Red" Grange and his eleven and the Cleveland Panthers opened the professional season on this gridiron.

Case which tied with Akron 14-14, may have trouble with the Woosterites. The scientists have shown a weak defense against passes and Art Winters, Case scout, reports the squad from Wayne county has a splendid offense with passes right over the line besides plenty of punch in hitting the line.

Dayton Troubles Carroll

Dayton which meets Carroll has the edge of the hosts. They have scored 70 points in the two games played this season. Carroll bowed in defeat last week to Grove City, 21-0.

ENGLISH CITY NOW HAS SURPLUS OF 2,000 WOMEN

And, They're All Under 40; Wallasey Called Best Marriage Market

London Oct. 8. The city of Wallasey, Cheshire, with a population of 90,000, is acclaimed the best marriage market in England.

Alderman J. W. Hodgson of Wallasey has issued an appeal to the young men of Britain to come to Cheshire and get their wives.

"We have," he declares, "two thousand surplus women under forty years of age. Young men should spend their holidays here, and find out what they are missing by having stayed."

The alderman's advertising campaign on behalf of the unmarried women of Wallasey has aroused their admiration and they have subscribed to a fund to have his portrait painted in oil in recognition of his services.

"I am glad to think," Alderman Holdsworth said in an interview, "that I am something of a 'ladies' mayor.' It seems to be a case of mutual admiration. I dread to think of the possibilities if I did not happen to be safely married.

"Personally, I think that women are marvelous. It is said that women do all the talking, but I think the boot is on the other foot. The women of this town are workers. Only those who are jealous would decry their activities."

Alderman Holdsworth takes a prominent part in all the feminist movements in Wallasey, and recently won a prize in a hat trimming contest.

As a result of the recent State election there will be six women in the next Maine legislature—two in the Senate and four in the House. It is the first time women have invaded the Senate and also the first time that more than one woman has been in the Maine legislature at a time.

BONUS COMMISSION TO PASS OUT NEXT DEC. 31

Total Number of Claims Paid to Sept. 1 Amounts to 399,667

Washington Oct. 8. The New York [illegible] commission will pass out of existence on Dec. 31, Comptroller General Warren R. Murphy of the treasury, chief officer of the body, due the credits in favor of the men eligible to receive a bonus announced today that the total number of claims paid up to September 1 amount to 399,667 out of a total of 414,995.

To date the total amount of bonus paid to World War veterans by [illegible] state is $47,117,398.67.

In addition to Comptroller Murphy of the commission is composed of State Treasurer Lewis H. Pounds, Attorney General Albert Ottinger and Adjutant General Franklin B. Ward.

"An analysis of the figures so long being applied to show that the vast percentage of the men who submitted claims under the bonus law had their claims granted," said Comptroller Murphy. "Out of the total of 414,995 applications, only 6,434 have been rejected. There still remains 8,894 claims to be disposed of before the commission goes out of existence."

Some veterans who were service only long enough to put on and take off their uniform, received bonus checks amounting to 25 cents but there were very few of these, the commission said.

A total of 20,174 veterans contributed their bonus to the Veterans Mountain Camp and the Disabled American Veterans of the United States. These contributions totaled $263,095.

"LOTTIE" the daughter-in-law is a ... selfish, pleasure-loving, ill-bred ... whose mother-in-law is equally selfish, rather stern but loveable under her teacher's severe mask. The break comes . . . and it is Mrs. Bascomb who is broken, her innocent pleasures, her entire life ruined by the self-centered ungrateful daughter-in-law. The birth of a daughter to Lottie makes her even more selfish and demanding, but in that same baby Mrs. Bascomb finds a life worth her tender care and sacrifices, the more so because the baby girl has her grandfather's very eyes and expression, those same characteristics for which Mrs. Bascomb had searched in vain in her erring son.

And then the story really begins. Mrs. Bascomb's life is devoted wholly to the granddaughter, in saving her from her mother. This she accomplishes partly through her own efforts and sacrifices and partly because the sole care of the child and mother falls upon her shoulders when Lottie becomes an invalid for life.

Ralph, the son, has discovered his mistake but not too late for reparation for his mother finds him the work which he learns to love and live for and she accomplishes his duties to the egotistical Lottie. Mrs. Bascomb's kindly love, devotion and understanding determine the little girl's life, and we leave her a product of perfect love and care, in budding womanhood, about to leave for college.

And, then Mrs. Bascomb's duties to her son, her granddaughter and her dead husband are at an end...but not all of her duties for the selfish daughter-in-law piteously weeps on her mother-in-law's shoulders shows her what will be the purpose of the remainder of her life . . . for Lottie, too, has grown to love and need her.

No, not a prodigal son story at all ...just a wonderful story of life told in Dorothy Canfield's clear unexcelled style.

Other books by Dorothy Canfield, all of which are of the true Dorothy Canfield realty, are "Rough Hewn," "The Home Maker," "The Squirrel-Cage," and "The Brimming Cup."

THE following is an interesting account of the youngest authors now writing.

"Sylvia Thompson, the 23-year-old author of 'The Hounds of Spring,' now the best-selling 1926 novel throughout the United States, is having a most eventful career for a heretofore unknown writer. 'The Hounds of Spring,' which she wrote when she was but 22 years old, was published in February, and became a best selling novel almost immediately. Then followed the report of the sale of the film rights for £3000, and soon word came from England that she had sold the serial rights of her next novel for about £2000. During the past four months the sales of 'The Hounds of Spring' have steadily increased, until it has already out-distanced most of the established American and English authors represented on publishers' spring lists. From a student at Oxford, with serious ambitions, Miss Thompson, who lives in London, has achieved transatlantic fame in the world of books in record-breaking time. Miss Thompson visited the United States last year as a member of the British delegation to the twenty-third interparliamentary congress at Washington. She was educated at Cheltenham and Somerville (Oxford)."

IT is interesting to note that changes in living and ideas have failed to effect the enduring hold of Charles Dickens on the American public. A recent poll of book sellers, publishers and librarians have shown that more copies of Dicken's work are sold than of any other author. Not only is Dickens holding his own among the best-selling and most worthwhile novels of today but he is gaining ground, having produced the type of novel, the types of characters that were destined to live and carry his fame from generation to generation.

Dr. Clifford Smyth, editor of the International Book Review, attributes Dicken's lasting popularity to that inexplicable something which is the secret of all genius. He claims it is Dickens' power to create a "vivid world, a world unforgetable, as intensely human ...for all its grotesqueries...as the world we live in." And that explanation sufficies as well as any...for who can explain the why and how of genius?

EMPIRE STATE CRIME BOARD TO URGE NEW LAWS

Criminal Statistics Will Show Extent of Offenses in State

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 8 — The new York State crime commission, which was authorized by the last Legislature, is making a thorough study of crime, with a view of submitting important recommendations to the 1927 Legislature, it was announced today at the Capitol.

Senator Caleb H. Baumes, of Newburgh, is chairman of the commission. Senator Baumes was chairman of a crime commission which secured the passage of a score of anti-crime laws at the last session of the Legislature.

Effect of Laws

One of the Baumes crime laws, which went into effect the first of July, has just resulted in the sentence of a New York youthful bandit to prison for life.

The work of the present crime commission is divided into an inquiry into the causes and effect of crime; visitation of penal institutions; inquiry into polishing; a study of court procedure and also into the nature of the punishment meted out to those convicted of criminal offenses.

"The inquiry into the causes and effect of crime," said a statement issued by the commission today, "will embrace a study of environment of people as conducing to the development of criminals through lack of home training, lack of proper recreational and educational facilities, the influence of spare time or unemployment upon the potential criminal and the benefits of social agencies, including welfare organizations, boys' clubs, churches, moving pictures, boy scout organizations and kindred agencies in curbing delinquency.

Will Investigate

"An investigation will be made of a large number of cases of inmates of state institutions and their histories traced back to childhood. A study will be made of the children's courts and also of commercial recreations to determine their influence upon the youth. A survey also will be undertaken of certain areas in New York City and other cities, and in some rural sections, to determine the state of crime among the youths and the influences that prevent crime as well as the things that encourage it."

For perhaps the first time in the history of the country, the commission expects to have a comprehensive system of criminal statistics which will show the extent of criminal offenses, the number of criminals, their age, sex, nativity and mental and physical status.

Another thing the commission hopes to determine is whether crime is more prevalent in the country or in the city, when compared with the population of cities and country towns and villages.

The commission expects to be ready to report early in 1927 to the lawmakers.

SANE GIRL IMPRISONED WITH LUNATICS

Central Press Photos

Miss Rose Berrows and Dr. Montague Lomax.

LONDON, Oct. 8—Ancient and barbarous cruelties are practised today in England in the name of sanity. Once, witches were burned in Salem and Jean d'Arc was put to death as a sorceress, but in these more subtle modern days, sane people are made insane and the insane removed from small possibility of cure.

Of such are the revelations made by the startling book which Dr. Montague Lomax, the eminent psychologist, has just written. His "Experiences of an Asylum Doctor" throws into bold relief the barbarisms of modern English insanity laws and cites many cases of conspicuous failure of what laws there are.

The most recent and inhuman case which the discussion has brought to light is that of the lovely Rose Berrows, a young woman of uncommon charm and beauty. As a child Miss Berrows indulged in one too many pranks and was sent to a reformatory. While there, she expressed her natural resentment forcibly, venting her anger on a door. For this youthful outburst of righteous indignation she was condemned by the officials to a life-long imprisonment among the criminally insane.

The case of Miss Berrows has focused public opinion on the means by which, under the existing laws, perfectly sane persons may be railroaded into insane asylums. The investigation made by one doctor on the instigation of a relative, or anyone in personal authority, is sufficient, if accompanied by a written certificate, to send an individual to an asylum. Once there, it is tremendously difficult to bring about his release.

Multiplication of such cases as Miss Berrows', together with Dr. Lomax's expose, are expected to bring about a radical reform in English lunacy laws.

U. S. BIG MARKET FOR ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS

Washington, Oct. 8—United States is one of the world's best markets for artificial flowers, fruits, leaves and other articles of this character.

Department of Commerce experts said that although the country supports a sizable domestic industry, the bulk of these commodities sold in America come from Germany, France and Czecho-Slovakia.

Artificial flowers and fruits are largely used in women's millinery and other decorative purposes.

Imports into United States for the first six months of 1926 were valued at $1,457,000, as compared to exports of $267,000. In 1925 the imports were $3,142,000 and exports $533,000 and in 1924, imports $2,899,000 and exports $600,000.

EUROPE SEEKS MOVIE TALENT FROM AMERICA

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 8 — Turn about is fair play. Now that the Hollywood companies have imported most of the famous European actors and directors, the European film concerns are scouting for material right in Hollywood.

Emmett Flynn, well-known director, has been commissioned by leading film producers of Europe to survey the cinema capital for possible "finds" to be starred in productions made abroad.

While the Europeans feel they cannot compete with American producers for the stars, because of tightened budgets in Europe, the foreign executives believe that many real "finds" are being overlooked in the abundance of talent in Hollywood.

LONDON TAXI DRIVERS THREATENING STRIKE

London, Oct. 8—A strike of London taxi-drivers is threatened.

The men declare they will take their cabs off the street unless the Ministry of transport modifies its projected order prohibiting them from plying for hire on the Strand, Bond Street, Victoria Street, and other busy thoroughfares.

The new regulations are designed to keep the cabs moving to prevent traffic congestion.

When we got out of school we all went to my house so I could put my books in and the others could hide theirs in our barn, and then we went in the house to get a drink, and when we got outside the Lost Bag of Tripe said he had found a box of powdered dum in our pantry and he had went and put half of it in my ant's powder-box on top of her powder and axted me to invite him to supper because he would like to see what it would do. I didn't do it. The last time the dirty crook had supper at our house he cut up a bar of brown soap and put it on the plate with the cheese. My ant had been out and she was warm when she got home just before supper, and she went in her room and pretty soon she come out, and my mother looked at her and then looked at her again, and said, "Nancy, what are you getting ready to do, to whistle?" And my ant spoke through the little hole that was all that was left of her mouth, and said "I believe my face is paralyzed!" So she laid down on the couch and they phoned for the doctor and he said the simptoms was new ones to him, and he would watch it for a day or two. So I went to bed then for fear someone would get to asting questions. The Lost Bag of Tripe is always getting someone in trouble.

Jubilee was glad to be pulled up.

..." replied the Cat, and with ... that I could only listen to a ... at a time. That is why I ... my ears."

..." said the Bob Cat, suspicious ... "that's why?"

..." begged the Fox. "Tell ... you are going to catch Uncle ... with your banjo."

..." snarled the Cat. "I ... been silly to try to catch ... in traps. What we need to ... him out of his bungalow by ... means. Then we can grab ... I will take my banjo and to... I will sit under his window and ... him. He will come out to see ... it and you can grab him."

..."You mean—serenade?" ask-ed the Fox.

"To serenade means to sing and play as I did," explained the Cat. "Wait until tonight and after the serenade we'll have a rabbit to eat."

When night came the Bob Cat took his banjo and, placing himself beneath Uncle Wiggily's window in the hollow stump bungalow, began to sing and play.

"He will wonder at this sweet music and soon come out," yowled the Bob Cat. Then he howled and screeched and plunked the banjo.

"Oh, this is terrible!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, awakened from pleasant dreams in the night. "Somebody's radio must be having the nightmare. I'll call the police." So he telephoned to the Police Dog, saying, "Somebody's radio is running wild. Come up here and stop it."

Up to the bungalow rushed the Police Dog, and when he saw the Bob Cat playing the banjo beneath the bunny's window and yowling, the Police Dog arrested the two bad chaps, including the Fox, and took them away for the night.

The Bob Cat began to sing.

"Thank goodness!" said Uncle Wiggily, and the Fox snarled from his jail cell to where the Bob Cat was locked up in his cell and asked:

"Do you know any more tunes? If you do, play them and they may let us go." But the Bob Cat only snarled and said something like "Applesauce!"

So this teaches us that there are two kinds of music, good and bad; and if th banana doesn't jump out of its skin when the lollypop hides behind the gum drop and cries "Boo!" I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the lucky wind.

UNEASINESS IN COTTON SPREADS TO STOCKS

Unsettlement Precipitates Another Heavy Selling Movement in Wall Street

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks irregular; industrial stocks reactionary; domestic bonds fairly steady; foreign bonds irregular; call money 4½ per cent; grain fairly steady; copper steady; oil irregular; cotton easy; rubber irregular; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange steady.

New York, Oct. 8—Uneasiness and irregularity in the cotton market today spread to the stock market and precipitated another heavy selling movement in which losses extended from 1 to 5 points.

A brief rally preceded and followed the decline and the market as a whole was extremely irregular and unsettled.

Money was in good supply at the opening of the session, but the banks were prepared to withdraw a considerable amount to make good their reserves at the Federal Reserve Bank, and rates moved up to five per cent when there was plenty of funds at the high rate, with some borrowing in the outside market at 4 3-4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

Commitments were much less violent and the volume of trading smaller, than in the three preceding sessions.

Most of the important groups of stocks were conspicuously inactive, the exceptions being the rails, coppers, equipments and specialties. Further attempts to depress the oil stocks were practically unsuccessful.

WRECKED SECTIONS OF FLORIDA RISE FROM RUINS RAPIDLY

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla., Oct. 8 —There is no use talking. There is something far from ordinary about this Florida country.

A fortnight ago Ft. Lauderdale, where the great hurricane hit with all its fury, was a veritable tangle of smashed houses, ravaged streets and the disorganized machinery of civilization. Today, Ft. Lauderdale is bounding back to better than normalcy with a resiliency which, perhaps, explains Florida and its rise to fame better than any other one quality.

Business is going on as usual. Only here and there bits of debris can be seen awaiting the systematic removal which the city has instituted. And the hundreds of small houses which were entirely or partially wrecked by the hurricane are being repaired and rebuilt with a deliberate, unworried efficiency.

Ft. Lauderdale, in proportion to its size and population, was just about the worst sufferer at the hands of the storm. But if the present pace of rehabilitation is maintained it will be among the first not only to wipe away all trace of the disaster, but to rise new and better than ever from the wreckage.

That's the spirit which is dominating Florida today. Rebuild, of course, but not only for the sake of rebuilding. Make it bigger and better this time.

Last year and the years before the world marvelled at Florida's real estate "boom." This year the world can well marvel as Florida, threatened with extinction, rebuilds to make its own dream come true.

500 U. E. NEGRO DOCTORS TO VISIT EUROPE SOON

London, Oct. 8—Five hundred negro physicians and surgeons from the United States are to visit Europe next summer to study hospital methods in England and the Continent.

The doctors, who will be accompanied by relatives numbering about 200, will visit Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Italy, from May until September.

A premature announcement of plans for the tour has provoked some lively passages between P. J. Holahan, director of the American Information Service in London, and Prof. William Wright, Dean of the London Hospital Medical School, who declared in an interview to a London newspaper that it was "not desirable to have a large number of negro doctors dumped on any particular hospital."

Holahan accused Wright of violating a confidence in dislosing at this time that the tour was contemplated, and declared that he had "insulted" the negro doctors by raising the color question.

KANSAS LEGIONNAIRES GET READY FOR PARIS

Ft. Scott, Kans., Oct. 8—With a large delegation already signed to take the trip to Paris to attend the American Legion convention there in 1927, Kansas legionnaires consider the convention an established fact, despite the question that has arisen due to the recent anti-American feeling in France, according to Ralph T. O'Neil, state commander.

"So far from creating antagonism against Americans, I believe that the convention is apropos in point of time, and in place. It will serve to better international feeling, and salve the bad impression that has been created by certain type of American tourists at a time when the French were sensitive to foreign feeling.

"The Kansas delegation will be heavily represented, and enthusiastically."

HIGH EXCHANGE ON YEN DROPS JAPANESE IMPORTS

San Francisco, Oct. 8—Higher exchange value of the yen and lower prices on raw cotton resulted in a drop in imports to Japan in August to the lowest level since September, 1924, according to a cable summary made public by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce here. Exports of raw silk from Japan showed a marked increase for August, but silk and cotton yarn exports declined.

The bureau's office in Manila reported the copra market steady with slightly higher prices. Firm markets have advanced the prices of high grade hemp.

VON HINDENBURG ACCEPTS VON SEECKT'S RESIGNATION

Berlin, Oct. 8—President Von Hindenburg today accepted the resignation of General Von Seeckt, commander of the reichswehr. The acceptance of Von Seeckt's resignation culminated a political crisis growing out of the irregular service of the eldest son of the former Crown Prince Wilhelm in the reichswehr, contrary to the terms of the Versailles treaty governing Germany's land forces.

The delay in the acceptance of his resignation had caused considerable resentment in Republican, Democratic and Socialistic ranks, the newspapers of these parties pointing out that if the president allowed Von Seeckt to remain in the army, Minister of Defense Gessler must resign, which would mean a victory for the militarist clique over the parliamentary regime.

The president's acceptance of the resignation is expected to avert a more serious political crisis.

BOB O'FARRELL TAKES LEAD IN WORLD SERIES

Cardinals' Slugging Catcher Has Batting Average of .437; Gehring with .412

New York, Oct. 8.—Bob O'Farrell, the Cardinals' slugging catcher, today had assumed the batting leadership of the world's series regulars with the fine average of .437. Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, was second with a mark of .412.

As a result of their hitting yesterday, the Yanks are batting .245, only fourteen points behind St. Louis.

The Ruth-Hornsby duel lapsed back into a dull lethargy yesterday. Neither superslugger got a hit, but Ruth twice walked, Hornsby failed to get aboard at any stage of the game, but in the sixth inning he gave the fans a thrill with a smash to far center that Earl Combs dragged down after a tremendous sprint. Afield Hornsby sparkled brightly, but Ruth made one of the two feature plays of the day with his long run to the left field temporary seats to spear Hafey's tall foul. The Babe has a big lead on Rogers in batting, .312 to .200.

ENJOINS ILLINOIS STUDENTS

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 8—The more serious side of college life has been presented to students of agriculture at the University of Illinois with a warning from Dean Herbert Mumford against campus frills. BEAN BAGS TURN BULLETS

Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 8 — Bean bags as barricades form the latest means of defense utilized by ship captains in running the gantlet on the Yangtze river. So many rounds of ammunition have been stopped by the improvised breastworks that finding a bullet in one's beans over here is not extraordinary.

Face and neck covered with eruption

Resinol cleared it away

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 26:—"I think Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful—I was a sufferer from skin trouble and I know what they did for me. I had only a few pimples at first, but this infection soon spread until they covered my face and neck and made me look disgraceful. They irritated me so I could scarcely keep my fingers off them. I tried various treatments, but none gave more than temporary relief. A friend recommended Resinol and I bought a jar of ointment and a cake of soap. After the second application of each, the itching stopped and when I had used the Resinol products for five weeks, there was not a trace of the trouble left." (Signed) Arthur Smith, 489 Hudson Ave.

THIEVES STEAL $60,000 UNDER EYES OF POLICE

Warsaw, Oct. 8—Thieves succeeded in stealing from a jewellers window in the Hotel Europe here more than $60,000 worth of jewelry, although at least twenty detectives and policemen were in the immediate vicinity.

The thieves accomplished their work in daylight. There were three house detectives and policemen were in the building, two outside and six policemen on permanent duty in front of the hotel, which is the abode of most foreign diplomats and several government officials. Directly across the street is the garrison for the city detachment, guarded by a score or more soldiers.

No trace of the thieves has been found since they closed the door on the shop clerks and walked away with three bags of loot in their hands.
